UNIVERSITIES SCORED BY U. C. SAVANT

Professor Gayley Declares They Are Merely "Glorified High Schools," Wasting Thousands Yearly

Accrediting System Held At Fault by Speaker, Who Says University Candidate Is Not Properly Prepared

BERKELEY, May 17.—State universities throughout the United States were classified as "glorified high schools" by Professor Charles M. Gayley, dean of the English department of the University of California, and one of the country's leading educators, at the annual alumni luncheon held in the Stephens Union building.

Professor Gayley declared that fully one-third of the students now on the University of California campus did not attend college with purely academic aims, and were not prepared to carry out those aims. He denounced the system of high school preparation as inadequate and antiquated, and declared that every student entering the university should be forced to take examinations. Thousands of dollars have been wasted annually because of the present inadequate system of high school training.

TWO REMEDIES ARE SUGGESTED.

Professor Gayley suggested two remedies. One the abolition of the present high school accrediting system, and the other the adoption of college methods now in operation in Great Britain and other European universities, of more intensified studies, smaller classes, and a standardization of university curriculum.

In discussing these changes he said: "My remedies are offered not as a criticism of the loyal effort made so far by these university and high school authorities, but as a constructive method by means of which the university and the schools may meet the changed conditions of the present time. My remedies are:

First, That the accrediting system, which I myself had a hand in creating, and which has done so much to build up the schools, and supply the universities with good students in earlier years, be abolished. My reasons are these: that as long as the present system of the schools were small, it was possible for the universities to supervise carefully classes and methods of study and attainment of pupils.

Now that there are hundreds of such schools and tens of thousands of pupils, this is impossible. It has been impossible for a long time past. The university cannot send to each school four or five experts in each branch of study for the careful investigation of each school. And, many schools have now reached the position where they will enjoy more freedom and will be better able to push their scholars to high degree of scholarship if they are placed entirely upon their own responsibility.

ACCREDTING SYSTEM IS HELD AT FAULT.

STAR LOSES SUIT ON EMPLOYMENT

Court Forbids Helene Chadwick to Accept Parts Outside Goldwyn Studios.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS. LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE. LOS ANGELES, May 17.—Helene Chadwick, motion picture actress, who recently sought an injunction against the Goldwyn Producing Corporation to prevent it from interfering with her efforts to obtain employment at other studios, has lost her suit.

Judge Arthur Leitch of the Superior court has upheld the validity of the contract the Goldwyn company, which she attacked, had signed, but which she declared had been permitted to lapse.

Miss Chadwick contended she had the right to secure employment elsewhere when her services were not required at the Goldwyn studio. This was the first case decided by Southern California courts in motion picture actors and their employers.

Judge Leitch, in stating the corporation was entitled to an injunction preventing the actress from breaking the contract, also upheld the validity of a morality clause in the document, which was written into many contracts with actors at the time of the trial in San Francisco of Roscoe C. "Fatty" Arbuckle, comedian, for manslaughter in connection with the death of Virginia Rappe, actress.

TRUANT BOA TERRIFIES CLAREMONT

Australian Python Squirms Away From Owner, Creates Fear Throughout Exclusive Residence Section

Missing Snake Is Harmless, Says L. E. Keeler, 18, But Citizens, Not Assured, Decline to Join in the Hunt

BERKELEY, May 17.—Because Leonardo Keeler, 18-year-old son of Charles Keeler, managing director of the Berkeley Chamber of Commerce, has a penchant for snakes of all kinds, consternation reigns in the exclusive Claremont section of the college city in which the Keeler domicile is located.

For, somewhere in the hills surrounding the Keeler residence at El Camino Real and The Palms, is wandering an Australian python, a member of the boa constrictor family, which Keeler recently brought home from the Antipodes. The reptile escaped several days ago when young Keeler was sunning him and another of his species in a tree in the grounds of the Keeler home.

Members of the local faculty have conducted a fruitless search for the missing pet. Residents of the Claremont section have been asked to join in the hunt. So far there have been no volunteers. Instead, children are kept from playing in the wooded areas and the residents of the exclusive residential area and walks on familiar paths have been suddenly halted.

The missing python, or Australian diamond snake, as the animal is also called, is six and one-half feet in length with a circumference of five inches. Young Keeler denies that the reptile will injure anyone, although he admits that other larger members of the species have strangled people to death.

"This snake, while a member of the boa constrictor family, has no poisonous fangs," he explains. "Its method of attacking people is to strangle them to death. I don't if this snake could harm anyone. It could probably stop circulation for a short period but, if attacked, a person could double-fist him, and the snake would be much difficulty. It is only when snakes of this species attain a length of 15 or more feet that they are really dangerous."

SPARKS WERE EXHIBITED IN PET SHOW.

Young Keeler, who is a recent graduate of University high school and is preparing to enter the University of California, brought the missing snake and its brother home recently from a trip to Australia and the South Seas. He had planned to exhibit both snakes at the Berkeley Merchants' and Manufacturers' Fair which opens tomorrow.

For years young Keeler has had a fondness for reptiles, and while attending high school, constantly carried snakes of various kinds to classes with him, placing them in pockets of his clothes as he studied. His sister, Miss Elsie Keeler, student at the university, shares his fondness with the reptiles and has entertained at college functions with snake dances in which live reptiles were her partners.

San Francisco and Alameda counties entered into a contract last year under which this county was to erect a new wing at Livermore at a cost of $100,000 to house patients from San Francisco. San Francisco was to bear the construction costs and advance a preliminary fee of $5000 for architect's work.

When the first voucher for this sum was presented to the San Francisco county auditor he refused to discharge the claim on the ground that no legal authority existed for the contract.

HONESTY IS CURE URGED BY HARDING

President Pays Warm Tribute to Alexander Hamilton's Seal of Integrity Put On Finances of America

At Unveiling of Statue to the First Treasury Secretary, Nation's Chief Executive Says Truth Is Cure for Ills

WASHINGTON, May 17.—Alexander Hamilton's conception of a financial integrity and the sanctity of obligation was invoked as a remedy for present world conditions by President Harding in an address today at the unveiling here of a statue of the first treasury secretary of the United States.

Such principles as Hamilton lived by, combined with a leadership which rises above prejudiced opinion, whether that prejudiced opinion had its beginnings in war or is emphasized by geographic divisions, the President declared would turn humanity "to the rational and only way of restoration."

"There will be the substitution of hope and resolution where hatred and resentment are now hindering recovery," he added. "There will be less thought of yesterday and more of tomorrow."

SEAL OF FINANCIAL SANCTITY WAS STAMPED.

Without mentioning directly the pressing problem incident to international financial obligations, Harding dwelt particularly upon the value of Hamilton's services in putting "the seal of sanctity upon the financial honor" of the American republic.

He stressed in the "rugged honesty of this patriot-statesman, because honesty will cure ten thousand ills of today," and asserted that "honesty among nations will dissolve their difficulties so that new and lasting friendships may be bound by the ties of fraternity and mutual trust."

"Honesty of leadership will spare us the popular misconceptions which are ever menacing to democracy," he continued. "Honesty in Statecraft will point the way to the unimpeachable heights."

Honesty in politics will reveal unpublic opinion, and honesty in public service everywhere will diminish public doubts and antagonisms.

HONESTY TO ABOLISH SOURCES OF DISCONTENT.

"Honesty of manhood and womanhood will abolish the sources of discontent which threaten the world's civilization and will bring us to conviction regarding the fundamental of the social fabric, without which fundamental there can be no human progress."

The President deplored the development of factionalism, and pointed to the "seemingly inspired fear of factionalism," held by Hamilton, who, he said, "thought it in the making and warned us of today against its development."

Captives Face New Perils As Fight Renewed

Fears for Safety of Foreigners Grow As Peking Troops and Bandits Clash

By ERIC VON SALZMANN, International News Service Staff Correspondent.

PEKING, May 17.—The Szechow bandit kidnapping situation today assumed an even graver aspect than before when it became known that the foreign hostages are now regarded as pawns in China's internal political situation. The bandits have widened the scope of their demands to include a settlement of all the grievances of South Shantung against the central government and have turned over negotiations to the chiefs of the secret societies of the whole of South Shantung. The effect of this development is to involve the whole population of one of China's greatest provinces in the affray.

PEKING, May 17.—(By United Press.)—At the height of the Chinese government's embarrassment over bandits' outrages to foreigners, the House of Representatives, sitting in committee, voted today a lack of confidence in the administration. The vote was 251 to 70.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—(By the Associated Press.)—A Peking dispatch to the state department today said that General John K. Davis and Major Philomeno, assistant military attaché at Peking, had reported that the bandits had stated they were ready to negotiate for the release of the Americans and other foreigners. The message said that a representative of the Chinese government left this morning to begin the negotiations.

(By the Associated Press.)

Anxiety over the foreign captives held in the Shantung hills by Chinese bandits was heightened today when word reached Peking of a clash between troops of the Chinese government and members of the outlaw band.

A detachment of bandits, attempting to join the main body at the Shantung mountain strong hold, was said to have been driven back after a sharp fight with the soldiers. This incident, it is feared, may add fuel to the smoldering vindictiveness of the bandits, who already are reported to have hanged three Chinese captives over a precipice to their death as a warning to the authorities. The bandits reportedly have threatened to kill all their prisoners if the troops invading their hills were not withdrawn and the bandits in accordance with the terms drafted by their spokesman, granted immunity and enrolled in the national army.

Further advices confirmed the report that the bandits had moved their captives further back into the mountain wilderness. Troops had not withdrawn today, but remained surrounding the territory occupied by the bandits, and communication with the captives was becoming increasingly difficult.

The bandits are reported to blame the Peking government for temporizing in the promised withdrawal of troops. The tuition of Shantung province renewed his assurance that the troops would be moved away, but the bandits, a quoted as saying they will hold the captives two weeks longer.

DISASTROUS SITUATION IN GOVERNMENT ARMY.

Another phase of the situation which is causing worry in official circles is dissatisfaction among the government troops, many of whom have not been paid for more than a year and are on short rations.

Paotzu mountain, to which the bandits retreated with their foreign hostages, is 20 miles from Tsoochwang.

England Fears Soviet Rupture; Finn Officials Warn Against Proposed Visit of Red Fleet

MANY POWERS MASS ARMIES

HELSINGFORS, May 17.—(By International News Service.)—The Finnish government today asked the Soviet government to postpone the visit of the Russian fleet to Finland, saying that the Finnish officials "could not accept the consequence of such a visit at this time."

LONDON, May 17.—(By United Press.)—Foreign Minister Curzon and Leonid Krasin, Russian envoy, had a long conference today on the subject of the British ten-day ultimatum to Russia.

By DAVID M. CHURCH, International News Service Staff Correspondent.

LONDON, May 17.—British government officials today refused to make definite declarations that a rupture with Soviet Russia would be avoided.

"Russia is conciliatory and we hope the demands contained in the British note of May 8 will be met by Moscow, thus avoiding a rupture," acting Premier Stanley Baldwin announced this afternoon in the House of Commons.

Constantinople dispatches indicate high tension between Russia and the Turks. The Soviet government is reported massing troops on the Turkish Caucasian frontier.

The Turks and French are on the verge of fighting in Syria. According to latest information, the French are concentrating airplanes and erecting fortifications on the border of northern Syria. Jugo-Slav and Bulgarian irregulars are clashing in the Balkan mountains.

The Anglo-Russian situation is delicate and holds tremendous possibilities concerning the peace of Europe. Many believe if an open break takes place some of the border states may go to war against Russia.

Marshal Foch, head of the French army, and Lord Cavan, head of the British army, went to Poland recently and were charged by soviet officials with stirring up Russian feeling on the Russia border.

The trouble between Russia and Turkey developed after the first Near East peace conference at Lausanne. It has grown to such proportions that Russian ships in Turkish Black Sea ports were ordered to leave.

GREEKS WORKING OVER ARMY FOR 6 MONTHS.

Greece has been working over her army for six months. "Greece will drive the Turks out of Europe if hostilities begin," said General Pangalos of the Greek army. "If the peace conference fails and fighting breaks out, we will beat the Turks in Asia as well as in Europe. Another thing is certain. Greece will not accept a peace forcibly imposed upon her."

Belgium is upset with a general strike that has extended to the railroads. Brussels and Antwerp passenger trains have suspended. Traffic everywhere has been deranged. There is no sign of a settlement of the Ruhr crisis.

The reparations question excites great alarm, although there are signs that Germany will make another offer.

GENERAL WAR FEARED IF GREEKS FIGHT TURKS.

LAUSANNE, May 17.—(By United Press.)—Renewal of the Turkey-Greece war, involving Serbia as an ally of Greece and Bulgaria as an ally of Turkey, is threatened. Such a Balkan conflagration, it is feared, might precipitate another general European conflict.

The Greek delegation threatens to leave the Near East peace conference here tomorrow unless the Turkish side agrees to withdraw its troops from the border.

Mrs. Sartori of Los Angeles has proven herself a valuable member of the board and should be continued.

Alden Anderson of Sacramento has been engaged in agricultural and horticultural pursuits all his life. It will be of value to the board.

Frederick Mears, former head of the Alaska Engineering company, which built the line. The spike is 5 1/2 inches long and weighs 15 ounces. It is a replica of a common railroad spike.

It was ordered by a business man of Anchorage, Alaska, from a manufacturing jewelry firm of Seattle.

MUST REMOVE GRASS, BRUSH FROM CITY LOTS

Fire Chief Sam Short today announced that it is his intention to punish violators of Ordinance 2274, which requires property owners to remove grass and brush which may constitute a fire menace. The fire prevention bureau gives notice to the property owner, and the person failing to comply with the order is subject to a $100 fine or 30 days in jail.

Commissioner Frank Colburn today said he would sustain the fire chief's efforts.

During June, July, August and September of last year, according to Chief Short, there were 1700 grass complaints sent to the fire department, and 753 of these were abated. Chief Short says:

"Should a fire occur to a piece of property overgrown with dry weeds and brush, which necessitates the calling out of the fire department apparatus, the owner or person having control of said piece of property will be arrested and prosecuted."

According to compilations from the United States War department there were enough Browns in the war to furnish a whole combat division against the Germans.

SLAUGHTER OF CHINESE HOSTAGES CONFIRMED.
SHANGHAI, May 17 (By the Associated Press).—Confirmation was received here today of the previous report that the Suchow bandits had killed three of their Chinese prisoners by hurling them from a cliff in the Patzuku hills.

The three men had been captured many weeks previously. They were killed because ransoms promised for their release had not been paid. It is believed the bandit chief ordered their execution as a warning in the present situation involving the fifteen foreigners held by the brigands.

FRENCHMAN PAROLED TO BRING NEW DEMANDS.

PEKING, May 17 (By the Associated Press).—V. Barube, a Frenchman, who was among the captives held by the Suchow bandits, has been released on parole, and has arrived at Taoschwang with further demands from the captors for the removal of the troops. He was scheduled to return to the bandit headquarters today, in accordance with the promise he made on leaving.

CHINESE ARMY HEAD PREDICTS MONTH'S DELAY.

SHANGHAI, May 17 (By the Associated Press).—That the Suchow bandits will not bill their foreign captives, but will hold them many weeks in the belief of General Hoo, commander of the district, where the brigands' stronghold is located. General Hoo's statement follows:

"My troops had the bandits surrounded shortly after their raid on the Shanghai-Peking Express. If foreign officials had not interfered I would have told the outlaws if a single foreigner were injured I would cut off the heads of every one of the brigands down to the last man of thousands that compose their bands. They know I would have kept my word. However, the foreign officials obliged me to withdraw my troops and the bandits have gone back into the mountains, where it is almost impossible to follow them."

ESCAPED PRISONER SAYS THREATS MEANT.

SHANGHAI, May 17 (by International News Service).—The Chinese bandits who seized many captives, including American men, women and children, in a raid upon the Shanghai-Peking express near the Shantung border, have selected new delegates to impress their demands upon Peking officials and foreign diplomats, according to information received here today. This news came from a young Chinese student of the Nanking college, named Ku, who had been captured by the bandits, but escaped. Ku said the brigands were in earnest in their threat to kill the foreign captives unless their demands are met. He believes the release of the prisoners will be delayed, owing to the mistrust of the bandit chiefs.

'ANGEL' IS SICK; CAMP FEELS SAD

A short telegram, announcing that the cook of the municipal camp was injured on the Hetch-Hetchy railroad on his way to the camp, caused Superintendent Jay to collect a new cook and start with him via automobile for the Sierra.

"Angel," the regular camp cook, is said to be so badly injured that he will be in hospital for several weeks.

The accident to "Angel" comes at an inopportune time, according to Nash, as nearly a week had been spent in finding "Angel" and rushing him to camp to take the place of the regular cook.

Mexico Recognition Parley Is Resumed

MEXICO CITY, May 17.—(By Associated Press).—The recognition commissioners of the United States and Mexico met today to discuss troublesome Article 27 of the Mexican constitution, the article that nationalizes the sub-soil minerals. The United States is asking Mexico to guarantee protection of petroleum rights acquired by Americans before the promulgation of the constitution on March 1, 1917.

With the article formally before the conference, together with Mexico's oft-repeated assertions that its provisions are not retroactive, President Obregon's commissioners expected to be able to announce what assurances the administration was prepared to offer in meeting Washington's request for positive guarantees.

It is unofficially learned that the United States commissioners are not departing from the principles laid down at the opening session on Monday, although they are prepared to insist that the basic principles of international law, where American interests are involved, be respected regardless of state or federal legislation.

Sick Man Slays Girl, Suicide Foiled

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., May 17.—Desperate because ill-health would not permit him to marry, George Arthur Sunberg, 31 years of age, yesterday shot and killed his sweetheart, Ruth Johnson, 22, and then attempted to commit suicide, but failed because his pistol jammed. He surrendered to the police and last night was formally charged with murder.

KEPT NO BOOKS, JUDGE SCORES

Superior Judge Dudley Kinsell today declared his intention to call to the attention of the Oakland city licensing department the case of R. E. Deike, 1425 Eighty-sixth avenue, against Frank Boyce, Oakland, second-hand automobile dealer. The testimony in the case brought out the fact that Boyce does not keep books.

"What any one, no matter what business he is engaged in, should keep books or be refused a license by the city. Especially is this true in the second-hand automobile industry."

The suit was one in which Deike sought to recover $350 from Boyce. The evidence showed that he had purchased a second-hand car from Boyce, paying $500 for the car and $350 to have it put in good running order. When he went to obtain a license for the machine he was notified that it was a stolen car, he declared.

He demanded the return of his money and Boyce agreed to pay back the $500 but refused to make good the balance, he said.

Boyce on taking the stand admitted that he did not keep books but claimed that he could account for his business by the state of his check book.

After the evidence was taken attorneys asked for a continuance on the grounds that a settlement was in sight.

PERGOLA BANDIT CASE MAY REACH JURORS TODAY

Alibi Defense of Howard L.
Royston is Attacked
by Prosecution

Although Howard L. Royston was not informed of the charges on which he was taken into custody for alleged participation in the holdup of the Pergola cafe on January 13, he immediately began talking about the holdup, according to the testimony of Deputy Sheriff J. J. Collier, who was called as a witness in the Royston trial today.

Collier declared that he and Deputy Sheriff Los Soares went to Sacramento to bring Royston back to Oakland. He was told that they were Alameda county officers. On his trip to this city the prisoner asked if the Pergola bandits had been captured yet, Collier declared.

As they were approaching the cafe on the Builde road Royston remarked that they were in the vicinity of the Pergola, Collier declared. When the building came in sight Royston pointed it out as the Pergola, according to the witness.

Collier also testified that Royston made a statement in the presence of himself and Soares, in which he claimed to have been in Oakland on the night of January 13 and to have attended a local theater. This is in direct contradiction to the defendant's testimony, in which he declared that he was in Sacramento during the entire week preceding January 15, two days after the robbery.

It is expected that the case will reach the jury some time today.

Launching an attack on the alibi defense offered by Royston, Deputy District Attorney Preston Higgins yesterday afternoon called E. R. Lafate, Mrs. Hattie Coles and Patrolman F. A. Pearl to the witness stand.

Royston testified that he was at home on the night of the robbery during the hours that the crime was committed and offered in support of his story a witness named George Pattullo, assistant chef of the Paramount cafe, Sacramento.

Pattullo, who said that Royston came to the restaurant on the night in question about midnight, remained there until the witness quit work and that the two walked home with Mrs. Hattie Coles, waitress in the cafe.

Mrs. Coles denied that she had walked home with the two men that night.

"I don't walk home with men unless I have known them for three or four days," declared Mrs. Coles, adding that Pattullo had been employed but two days at the cafe.

Pattullo also said that he had stopped at a drug store on his way home and there had encountered Patrolman Pearl. The latter said he had no recollection of the encounter but, under cross examination, admitted that it might have occurred.

Legate, proprietor of the cafe, declared that Pattullo did not work for him on the night of the thirteen. He based this declaration on the fact that Friday night was Pattullo's night off. Shown on a calendar that January 13 fell on a Saturday night, the witness changed his statement and said that Pattullo did work at the restaurant on Saturday night, the thirteenth of January. He said that at first he believed the thirteenth was Friday.

PROSECUTION IN ANDRADE TRIAL CONCLUDES CASE

State Rests and the Defense
Asks Instructed Verdict Be Returned.

The prosecution in the trial of Jesse Andrade rested today, this action coming as a surprise to the defense and to court attaches. This is the third time Andrade, former paying teller and assistant cashier of the Oakland branch of the Bank of Italy, has been tried, one charge being for falsification of records and the second for embezzlement. Each of these two trials occupied more than a month for trial and the sudden termination of the prosecution's case today caused considerable comment about the court house.

The move of the prosecution was met immediately by a motion on the part of the defense for an instructed verdict. After Attorney Peter Crosby and George Baus, of counsel for the defense, had stated their position, Judge P. R. Parker, before whom the case is being heard, withheld ruling until the afternoon session.

EMBEZZLEMENT CHARGED.
Andrade is charged with having embezzled $49,560 from the bank while he was in its employ. He was arrested last July. He was acquitted of the charge of falsifying public records and on the charge of embezzlement the jury found him innocent on two counts and disagreed on the other four counts in the indictment.

At that hearing the witnesses called, and who have not been heard in the present trial, include A. J. Mount, manager of the local branch; A. E. Bateman, star witness, who occupied the same paying teller's cage as Andrade; George O. Boardwell, general auditor of the bank; Louis Ferrari, chief counsel for the bank; W. E. Williams, traveling auditor; A. P. Sichter, former chief clerk of the local branch; Miss Mary Masso, stenographer, and Dan McCarthy, bank watchman.

WEDDING HALTED BY NANCY HOYT STIDE CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, May 17.—Washington society has been provided with a new sensation by Miss Nancy Hoyt, whose sister, Mrs. Elmer Hoyt, Highborn Wylie, has been the center of a series of matrimonial sensations since 1910.

"Indefinite postponement" of Miss Hoyt's marriage to Lieutenant F. Wiseman Clarke, of the British navy, was announced yesterday a few hours before the time set for the wedding and after many of the guests had already assembled for the ceremony. At the Hoyt home it was said the postponement was due to Miss Hoyt's illness. After the announcement, however, the prospective bridegroom and his parents left for New York with the apparent intention of sailing for England.

Mrs. Wylie, sister of Miss Hoyt, first started society in 1910 by eloping with Horace Wylie, from whom she recently was granted a divorce. At the time of the elopement she was the wife of Philip S. Highborn, a member of another prominent Washington family, and soon after her departure he committed suicide.

TESTIMONY NOT APPLICABLE.
Warren said that he did not call these witnesses on this trial because their testimony dealt with the two counts upon which Andrade was acquitted at the last trial, and that, therefore, their testimony cannot be introduced in the present hearing.

In discussing the defendant's motion for an instructed verdict Judge Parker said from the bench: "Were I a member of the jury and the case submitted to me in its present form I would bring in a verdict of not guilty. However, I will hear further arguments later in the day."

UNDER-GRADS AUTO PRIVILEGES MAY BE STOPPED

Stanford Will Decide Issue at the Coming Student Body Voting.

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, May 17.—Undergraduate action will be the cause of the abolition of underclass automobile privileges at Stanford if the plans of senior students here meet success in the annual student body elections May 29.

A move started two years ago by student journalists to remove undergraduate privileges of car ownership and operation met with failure, but a small group has, by persistent work, succeeded in putting the issue up to a student body vote with the assurance of support from unexpected quarters.

The present freshman class, which will as a consequence be the body most affected if the new ruling passes, has declared by class acclamation its intention to support the measure and to lend assistance in its enforcement next year. Meeting of honorary organizations and Baldwin, and Chester Thomas, daughter of Mrs. Marilyn Thomas, have been given the leading parts. A large number of guests will motor to Palo Alto for the benefit.

Troubled With Ants?

There is just one successful method of controlling Argentine Ants. That method is to kill them in the garden with a seductive poison which the workers can carry into their nest.

University and Government scientists have worked out a formula that gets this result if properly used.

This formula can be purchased at our stores under the name of Argo Ant Poison. You place it on a sponge which you put in a tin or glass container. It should not be used in the house because it attracts ants which is necessary in order to destroy the colonies.

SNOW TO DELIGHT JUNGLE NATIVES BY MOVIE SHOW

Famous Oakland Hunter is Planning New Trip to Dark Continent

Moving picture stars of the African jungles who have entertained countless American audiences, but who have never seen a moving picture themselves will be accorded that pleasure when H. A. SNOW, the intrepid Oakland big game hunter, again goes into the bush in the fall of this year.

Snow returned to Oakland yesterday after a conquest of the East, bringing back another collection of rare trophies in the form of eleven guns, the key to four cities, four native animals, and countless testimonials from various cities and clubs throughout the country.

But in his own estimation, the most important article is the plan for a device which is to enable him to greatly improve on his method of photographing wild animals in the African wastes. This device is a gigantic searchlight apparatus which is to be mounted on an automobile and which will enable him to take pictures at night when most of the animals sought are active.

PLANS SHOW FOR NATIVES

Another novel feature which he plans to add to his new expedition is a portable projection machine, mounted on an automobile, which he will use to introduce the movie into jungle life.

In this way, the African natives will see the pictures for which they performed. The hunter has set June 15 as the tentative date when he will leave on his next hunting expedition. He plans to spend from one to three years in the war, the Central Africa, during which time he will make photographs of the formations of rock and foliage that are to be used for reference in the construction of the new museum building in Oakland.

In Abyssinia, he hopes to see photographs of the rare species of animals when they come to the water holes at night. The searchlight apparatus is being designed especially for this purpose. His special ambition on this trip will be to secure specimens and photographs of the elephants, hippopotami and buffalo.

MANY TROPHIES BROUGHT BACK

One of the trophies Snow brought from the East is a gold inlaid Winchester elephant gun, presented to him by Major Blain of New York. The gun is valued at $1500. A gold-inlaid shotgun was presented to him by the Fish and Gun club of Hamilton, and nine other guns were given to him by various other cities and clubs. He received the keys to Cincinnati, Columbus, Hamilton, and Boston and in Cincinnati, was presented with a loving cup by the mayor.

Accompanying him on his next expedition will be his wife; his two sons, Sydney and Homer; Miss Virginia G. Ormsby, of Oakland, who is to become the bride of Sydney Snow on June 6, and two men who have not yet been selected.

New Trophies for Snow

Returning to Oakland after a tour of various cities of the East, H. A. SNOW, the Oakland big-game hunter, brought back eleven guns, the keys to four cities, a loving cup and countless testimonials. The picture shows MOYOR MORRIS, of Cincinnati, presenting Snow with the key to the city, and U. T. TUDOR, another official, awaiting the opportunity to give him a silver cup.

OWN SUIT FOR CLOTHES TAKEN

WARM SPRINGS, May 17.—Probably believing that a fair exchange is no robbery, a thief recently broke into the home of John Silva here, taking a suit of clothes and leaving his old suit. At the home of J. Andrade, where the robber had evidently stopped before visiting the Silva place, a gun was taken. It was left by the robber at Silva's home.

Two suspicious characters are reported to have been seen in the neighborhood of the thefts on the same afternoon.

Winning Athletes Honored at Picnic

ALAMEDA, May 17.—One hundred athletes, who have carried off the honors for Washington school in recent track meets during the spring months, were made the honor guests today at a basket picnic in the Washington park given under the auspices of the Mothers' club of the institution.

The members of the Washington school faculty and the physical education directors in the elementary school were specially invited guests. The committee in charge of the picnic included Mrs. H. J. Batten, chairman, assisted by Mrs. E. J. Strang, Mrs. A. Price, Mrs. E. McRitchie and Mrs. M. Duhles.

The picnic, which was a wonderful success, and contains wonderful possibilities," Guy said. "The trouble, from the investment standpoint, is the instability of the government. With proper protection, large financiers throughout the rest of the world would gladly place their capital there and aid in developing the country."

SINGLAIN WINS; POLICE FAIL ON FELONY WARRANT

Criminal Syndicalism Charge Not Upheld by District Attorney.

LOS ANGELES, May 17.—(United Press.)—Upon Sinclair, Socialist author, won the first round of his "free speech fight" with Chief of Police Oaks, when the latter was unable to obtain from the district attorney's office a felony warrant charging Sinclair and his three companions with criminal syndicalism.

Chief Deputy District Attorney Asa Keyes ruled that there was no evidence sufficient to cause the issuance of a complaint on those grounds. Oaks obtained misdemeanor warrants from the city attorney instead.

Kimbro and Hugh Hardyman were released on $500 bail each yesterday after they were brought to court and pleaded not guilty.

They were charged with "conspiracy to violate a law by exciting discontent by disseminating certain thoughts and theories contemptuous of the constitution of the state of California and hindering the streets of San Pedro and inclining riot."

Sinclair's attorney said this charge means that he is being prosecuted on grounds of violating the constitution of the state of California through reading the constitution of the United States.

Forty alleged I. W. W.s were also brought into court on charges of conspiracy and disturbing the peace. They pleaded not guilty and demanded jury trial. Others of the 400 arrested were to be brought up later.

Work at the port was approaching normal, it was reported. Several hundred strikers have returned to work along the waterfront. Seven hundred strikebreakers will be imported.

It will take several weeks, however, to clear away congestion. Sinclair, out on $500 bail today, fired the opening guns in his announced campaign to "blow up" Chief of Police Oaks, the city council of Los Angeles, the Merchants and Manufacturers Association and the Chamber of Commerce.

In a letter mailed here today Sinclair charges Oaks attempted to kidnap him, denied him the services of attorneys and otherwise deprived him of his alleged rights under the constitutions of the United States and California.

Sinclair reiterates his purpose to continue speaking on behalf of the strikers at San Pedro, calls of a mass meeting to be held in Los Angeles, immediately, at which he will speak, and invites the chief to attend.

Sinclair's communication, in part, follows: "Having escaped from your clutches yesterday afternoon, I am now in position to answer your formal statement to the public, that I am 'more dangerous than 1000 I. W. W.s.' I thank you for this statement, for to be dangerous to lawbreakers in office is the highest duty that a citizen of this community can perform.

"I told you at least a dozen times in your office that my only purpose was to stand on private property with the written permission of the owner and there to read the Constitution of the United States; and you perfectly well know that I did this, and only this.

"But you told me that 'this constitution stuff' does not go at the harbor. You have established martial law and you told me that if I tried to read the Constitution, even on private property, I would be thrown into jail and there would be no bail for me—and I was even though I read you the provision of the state constitution, guaranteeing the right to bail."

FIGHT ON WHITE LIES IS STARTED BY COUNTY CLERK

SAN BERNARDINO, May 17.—In a war on so-called "white lies" at the marriage license bureau, County Clerk Harry L. Allison yesterday started a campaign against Johnnie Dean, 25, of Upland, for his part in securing a marriage license to marry Irene Bane, whom her mother charges is only 11 years old. The couple were married in Upland last September.

Mrs. Mary Bane, the girl's mother, gave her consent to the marriage before a justice of the peace. County Clerk Allison charges that, when Dean took the written consent of the girl's mother, he forged an alteration of the age from 13 to 17 years.

Although declaring the girl was 13 years old when she gave her consent to the marriage, Mrs. Bane charged in an amendment suit she has filed that the girl is only 11 years old. In an effort to halt the marriage of girls and boys under legal age Allison has revoked all commissions for deputy clerks in various parts of the county and persons seeking marriage licenses must all come to his office here.

BOY'S WRIST BROKEN. ALAMEDA, May 17.—In attempting to emulate the feats of a lightning walker on the back fence near his home yesterday, George Andersen, 13-year-old school boy of 1345 Versailles avenue, slipped and fell, breaking her right wrist.

CHARGE EXPLAINED. Sinclair's attorney said this charge means that he is being prosecuted on grounds of violating the constitution of the state of California through reading the constitution of the United States.

Forty alleged I. W. W.s were also brought into court on charges of conspiracy and disturbing the peace. They pleaded not guilty and demanded jury trial. Others of the 400 arrested were to be brought up later.

NO CONCORDANCE ON ENFORCEMENT HARDING'S STAND

President Regards the 18th Amendment and Volstead Law As Inseparable.

By LAWRENCE MARTIN, United Press Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—President Harding has issued the bold and most sweeping challenge to the forces of national prohibition they have yet received. He believes they will not dare accept the issue, if they do, he is confident they will be swept to defeat under a wave of public opinion which will at the same time carry prohibition enforcement toward the goal Mr. Harding has set for it—100 percent enforcement and a bone dry nation.

The president wrote his letter to Lesley Wait of Newburgh, N. Y., with a full appreciation of what he was doing. He simply stated the issue involved in New York repeal of its state enforcement code as he sees it. To Mr. Harding that issue is:

Shall federal enforcement of a law and a constitutional amendment adopted after 50 years of consideration and debate be endangered by the revival of the outworn doctrine of the sovereignty of the individual states?

The difference between Mr. Harding and state's rights advocates is not a matter of amendment and the Volstead law as a unit, one and inseparable. They regard the 18th amendment as one thing and the machinery for its enforcement as another.

If Mr. Harding's view about the unity be right, he has put the state's rights enemies of prohibition in the position of attacking the federal constitution. He believes the country will agree with him that attempts by the states to interfere with enforcement by putting the entire burden of it upon the federal government is an attempt to subvert the constitution.

The president is ready to make a thorough test of the question both practically and politically. He has no thought of taking over the government of New York state, or its police powers. All he can do until congress gives him more men and money is to mass within the state every available prohibition enforcement, and that is what he will do if Governor Smith signs the repeal bill.

WARNING IS EMPHATIC. Smith—and with him the whole Democratic party—must now choose between reviving the state's rights issue as support for their platform and giving the Republicans the dry issue in 1924, or rebelling Harding and the Republicans of the issue of unqualified support of the prohibition amendment and law by retreating from their stand for modified enforcement.

Harding's emphasis in his letter to Wait was deliberate. He thought it time to warn other states that might be considering following New York's footsteps that they would be raising an issue thereby upon which this administration can accept no compromise. The president believes he has staved off repeal of other state codes.

Oaklander Only Candidate in Presbyterian Assembly
Against W. J. Bryan.

INDIANAPOLIS, May 17.—(By The Associated Press.)—William Jennings Bryan was the first candidate nominated for the office of moderator at the 13th general assembly of the Presbyterian church in the United States of America today. His name was presented by the Rev. Aquilla Webb, of Wilmington, Del.

Rev. Frank W. Silsley, of Oakland, Cal., was nominated by James Field, of San Francisco. In his nomination speech Field said, "Rev. Silsley's candidacy was not the product of a hotel room conference."

Will H. Hays, whose name has been mentioned as a candidate for moderator, said he would support Bryan.

Presbyterian church leaders, representing 301 synods in America and 22 foreign missions, opened their 13th annual general assembly today, partook of the sacrament of the Lord's Supper, and heard the annual sermon of the retiring moderator, the Rev. Calvin C. Hays.

MODERATOR TO BE ELECTED.
This afternoon they will select his successor, organize their convention and appoint standing and special committees.

Tonight Will H. Hays, president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, will address the first "popular meeting" and launch a campaign to raise a laymen's fund of $15,000, 000 to add to the endowment of the Board of Ministerial Relief and Sustenance.

Supervisors to Proceed With Estuary Tube

War Department to Be Told of Bond Issue in Plea for Bridge Extension.

Instructions were given today by the board of supervisors to George Posey, county engineer, to notify the war department of the official results of the tube bond issue along with a request for the extension of time in which to allow for removal of the Webster street bridge pending construction of the tube. Copies of this letter will be sent to the city councils of Oakland and Alameda, while overtures will be made to Oakland officials for a conference to consider the Harrison street alignment for the Oakland approach.

The question of selling sufficient bonds to cover the preliminary work for the tube, such as preparing of plans and the condemnation of property for the approach, was considered by the board but not decided upon. Posey said it would take about $50,000 to cover the cost of these preliminaries.

PAVEMENT DISCUSSED.
The board held a general discussion concerning a type of pavement to be used on the Newark to Pleasanton road, but the matter was not decided upon. Dwight Hutchinson, paving contractor, appeared before the board in an advisory capacity and stated his belief that with the present foundation of gravel now on the road an asphalt surface would be adequate and more economical than a standard concrete pavement. Posey did not altogether concur in this judgment.

At the request of A. E. Grautner, chairman of the American Legion rehabilitation committee, twelfth district, the board consented, through Dr. R. G. Broderick, superintendent of hospitals, and Henry Meyers, county architect, to donate their services in drawing up preliminary plans and specifications for the proposed disabled veterans' hospital.

The communication from Grautner declared it was the desire of the American Legion to present these plans to the U. S. Veterans' Bureau for consideration.

APPROPRIATION TO STAND.
It was reported to the board by Dr. Broderick that in all probability the bill pending in the legislature which would cancel the state appropriation to the Arroyo sanitarium and county hospital would be defeated. Dr. Broderick said this clause would be stricken from the bill, due to the efforts of the supervisors. Assemblymen Edgar S. Hurley, Roscoe Jones, Miss Annie Florence Brown, himself and others. The state appropriation last year was $27,000 for the Arroyo sanitarium, and $12,000 for the county hospital, he said.

Suit Filed to Close Key Route Inn Bar

SAN FRANCISCO, May 17.—Liquor abatement proceedings were filed against a bar in the Key Route Inn, Oakland, in the federal district court today by Assistant U. S. Attorney James D. Keaton, charging a violation of the prohibition laws. The operators of the place are given as Charles C. Crane, Milo Church, D. McBreary and Otto Weiss. It is charged that on March 15 Weiss sold two bottles of home brew to prohibition officer C. W. Ahlin, collecting $1.

This is a violation of the prohibition laws and under the abatement act the premises can be closed.

BANKS URGED TO BAR BUILDING FOR SPECULATION

Franklin Roosevelt, Builders
Leader, Sounds Warning for Curtailment.

NEW YORK, May 17. (By International News Service).—Banking interests have been asked to curtail the financing of speculative building until after the end of the summer, according to Franklin D. Roosevelt, former assistant secretary of the navy, now president of the American Construction Council.

"The present building program," he said today, "cannot be carried out with the present resources, even if no further increase in construction occurs."

The council, he said, is appealing to the intelligence and patriotism of the American people in asking that all projected building work not yet begun be postponed until next fall.

S. F. WARNING SOUNDING.
SAN FRANCISCO, May 17.—Warning to the builders of the bay regions of a possible "buyers' strike" growing out of the high cost of building materials has been sounded by William H. George.

DISCOVERER OF TUT'S TOMB LEFT CISTS

LONDON, May 17.—(By the Associated Press).—The Earl of Carnarvon, discoverer of the tomb of Tutankhamun, left an estate of £338,927. It developed when his will was filed for probate today. He bequeaths his racehorses and his personal estate to his wife. This includes his collection of Egyptian treasures, regarding which the only stipulation is that if she desires to sell it the British Museum be given the first refusal for £20,000 with the Metropolitan Museum of New York the next choice.

REDMEN ENJOY CLAIMS.
RICHMOND, May 17.—Pinole claims with all the trimmings, served after the business session of the Redmen had been closed last evening. Announcement was made that the furniture and furnishings for the home will be forthcoming. The committee is composed of Chas. Williams, John Church, N. Pacheco, O. N. Smith and Louis Pinder.

While the situation in New York and other centers of the East may be acute," said George, "I do not believe that its effect will be felt on the Pacific Coast. At the same time, local builders and laborers must not go crazy. Here on the Pacific Coast the scarcity of labor naturally brings about high wages, but the higher the wages go the higher the costs of materials, and ultimately the higher rents will be."

LABOR COUNCIL INVITES GOMPERS TO 'ISLE OF OZ'

Pageant Planned As Magnet for Great Gathering of State Workers.

Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, has been invited to attend the spectacle and Pageant of Progress to be staged by the Oakland Labor Temple Association on Lake Merritt for the ten-day period starting June 25, under the title of the Island of Oz. The suggestion that Gompers be invited as a special guest of honor was advanced at the meeting of the Central Labor Council and was unanimously adopted.

"The Island of Oz will be the magnet for the greatest labor gathering yet held in the State," explained William A. Spooner, "I am familiar with the plans, which are of the most ambitious nature, and I feel that it would be an ideal thing if we could secure the attendance of Gompers."

'KING' ENJOYED HIGH VIANDS ON PLATES OF GOLD

Pretty Maids Handy to Obey
Every Whim of the "Monarch."

By J. L. O'SULLIVAN.
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)
(Copyright 1923 by United Press.)

ST. JOSEPH, Mich., May 17.—Benjamin Turnell, the man who would be king, sat with royal pomp and splendor in Shiloh Palace of the House of David.

The story of life in this alleged twentieth century seraglio was given to the United Press by a 20-year-old girl, Lavina Johnson Hengger, who said she had been a "spoiler" and detective, reporting directly to the "king" on indiscretions of his flock.

Surrounded by his harem of "virgins," the "seventh angel" who is being investigated by Judge Harry Dingeman's "one man" grand jury, lived a life of luxurious ease and splendor in this Michigan "Valley of the Kings."

Food was served on plates of gold to the modern sultan, who maintained his corps of maidens long after the abolition of the Turkish ruler's nest.

Rare liquors were poured to suit his moods and tastes in glistening goblets studded with emeralds and rubies, by the young girl attendants. Trained hula dancers furnished entertainment at his bidding.

His long, gray beard was combed and primed by a maid in waiting. His bath was prepared, clothes carefully arranged and every want anticipated by the score of elect "sisters" who vied with each other for the honor of administering to his personal wants.

The chosen Shiloh girls, arrayed in the finest silks while their less fortunate "sisters" in the colony were allowed only roughest cotton clothes of plainer styles, maintained the royal apartment.

The king's room was furnished with tapestries and luxurious couches and divans. Valuable paintings graced the walls. A thousand workers from every walk of life from preaching to peanum selling furnished the gold for the upkeep of this retinue.

WORKED AT NIGHT,
SLEPT DURING DAY.

"Benjamin seldom slept at night," Lavina said. "There was always a light in his room. He said he did his work then, preparing his writings and prophecies. He slept in the day time. The spirits were abroad in the night time and they would inspire his works," he said.

"Twenty-three girls lived in Shiloh. They were the favored flock. They had nothing to do but care for Benjamin. No other men lived in the apartment."

"All other members of the colony worked hard, were given poor food and insufficient clothing."

"While I was in Queen Mary's retinue I acted as a spoiler for Benjamin. I was forced to work in the restaurant and do other hard labor."

"Benjamin's girls arose early when a general bell was sounded, to be prepared for his appearance. Breakfast, consisting of the choicest fruits and carefully selected and prepared food, were ready for service to the king in bed, if he desired."

"While Benjamin and his virgins were satisfying their appetites with the best of foods, the other members of the colony were given only the plainest victuals."

"They never had eggs, butter and cream. Of course, none in the entire family ate meat."

"The king seldom appeared on the grounds, except on state occasions. He worked through hand-picked assistants. When he did appear, he was always surrounded by a bevy of beautiful girls. He rode with them in a glass enclosed car upon the miniature railway to various parts of the estate."

"The girls sought the honor of caring for Benjamin's room, of arranging his room and of going into his toilet."

"Religious services and ceremonies were few. On the last Friday of each month all the brothers and sisters more than twelve years of age were summoned to the assembly hall to hear Benjamin preach. He spoke plainly, especially on the doctrines which provide that women must lead keep a pledge of celibacy.

"On various occasions decreed by Benjamin, the 'cleansing fountain' ceremony was held to 'purify the blood' of the elect. There was no ceremonial attached. We simply wrote our confessions of our misdeeds, tied through an assembly hall and dropped papers bearing our signatures into a large waste basket. These were taken to Benjamin. Although he declared he never read them, I know he did, because of the matters he called to my attention which he could not possibly have known of otherwise."

Woman Removes Hat for Man as Flag Passes By

MODESTO, May 17.—At the headquarters of the Women's Relief Corps in the Modesto hotel is a hat which the owner, a young man, may have if he will come for it.

The hat was one of the few that refused to come voluntarily off as yesterday's parade of the Grand Army of the Republic. It happened that the Women's Relief Corps passed for a moment near this hat, and others as well, that had not been removed.

"Will you please take off your hats for the flag?" asked Mrs. Gladys Estelle Magille, patriotic inspector of Lincoln Corps No. 3. All the hats save this one were doffed immediately. Moving up closer to the owner of the hat, Mrs. Magille said:

"Maybe you didn't understand. Will you please remove your hat for the flag?"

"I understand perfectly, but I won't take it off," he replied. "Then I'll take it off for you," said Mrs. Magille, while the young man turned purple, but offered no resistance.

RELIEF DEMANDED AT POSTOFFICE IN C. OF C. NOTE

Business Men of Oakland Continue Fight Against Present Conditions.

Oakland's postal conditions are termed deplorable in a message sent to Postmaster General Harry S. New by the Oakland Chamber of Commerce today. Although New announced in a message to the chamber yesterday that plans for the Oakland postoffice have been abandoned, the chamber is continuing the fight. The telegram, signed by Roscoe D. Wyatt, managing director, reads as follows:

"Three thousand members of this chamber, with business interests which are disastrously affected by deplorable postal conditions in Oakland, are indignant over report that relief measures are not to be taken by your department. More adequate housing for postal facilities is imperative, as shown by reports already sent. Increasingly difficult postal situation reflects no credit on its management."

For a period of months the Oakland Chamber of Commerce has been directing the attention of postoffice officials in Washington to the fact that Oakland's postoffice is inadequately housed and that, as a result, it is necessary to handle mail three and four times over the limit of capacity. The chamber is of the opinion that greater housing facilities of a more modern character are imperative and proposes, according to officials, to continue to send these complaints to Washington until the situation is altered.

R. O. T. C. Moved to Oakland Auditorium

Headquarters of the Oakland high school R. O. T. C. were transferred today to the municipal auditorium, where a special room has been granted by the public works department to the military organization.

Headquarters have been at the Oakland high school, but more space was demanded since the expansion of the R. O. T. C. in this city, and the Oakland High school officers will now be housed by the school's own military department. The auditorium gives the officers a more central location.

Lieutenant Colonel Charles G. Lawrence and Major Francis Hunter moved to the auditorium today. Their staffs will follow as soon as the telephone are installed.

EARLY DECISION ON SUGAR BOYCOTT ASKED BY U. S.

Acting Attorney-General Declares Housewives' Boycott Proving Effective.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—(United Press.)—The government will ask the United States Supreme Court Monday to set an early date for hearing its appeal from the decision of the federal court in New York denying an injunction against the New York Sugar Exchange, the department of Justice announced today.

A motion to advance the case for argument "on the earliest day convenient to the court" will be filed on the ground that the suit "is of unusual public importance in that the condition complained of in the petition still obtains and it is vital to the public interest that the question of whether the United States has the power under existing statutes to obtain relief should be finally determined at the earliest practicable date." Acting Attorney General Seymour said the government had not in any degree abandoned its effort to stop the sugar boycott.

He declared the boycott instituted by American housewives is having its effect.

"The sugar market is not moving; it is stagnant," said Seymour. "Public attention has been directed to the situation that public sentiment has solved."

Z R-3 READY NEXT FALL FOR FLIGHT TO U. S.

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, May 17.—(By the Associated Press.)—The greatest aircraft the world has ever seen is slowly taking form under the gigantic shed of the Zeppelin plant overlooking Lake Constance, in which were built the mammoth ships that wrought such havoc in the World War.

This craft, known as the ZR-3, is being constructed for the American Navy, and will attempt a flight to America when completed, which, however, will not be earlier than October or November of this year, and possibly not until next spring.

It will exceed in size the Zeppelin now being built at Lakehurst, N. J.

Larger than the R-38, which crashed in England en route to America, and than all the similar machines turned over to England, France and Italy, the ZR-3 will be more than 300 meters (nearly 985 feet) in length, and over 40 meters (approximately 131 feet) in height. It will be the master effort of the works created by Count Zeppelin.

CHARRED BODY FOUND IN RUINS

LOS ANGELES, May 17.—The charred remains of a man believed to have been George E. Guernsey were found in the ruins of a destroyed by the early today.

Parts of a still were also found in the ruins, which led police officers to believe that the use in which the man lost his life was making liquor.

Nearby neighbors declared they were awakened by several sharp explosions from the house and within a few minutes flames burst from several windows of the structure. Little was left of the house when the department arrived.

OAKLAND TO HAVE ONE OF BIGGEST RADIO STATIONS

General Electric to Begin Work On Plant in the Near Future.

Oakland is soon to have one of the largest radio broadcasting stations in the world. Plans are prepared, and construction will begin almost immediately on the General Electric company's property on East Fourteenth street.

Exclusive announcement of the company's plans was made in The TRIBUNE several days ago. This was the announcement of Dr. Thomas Addison, Pacific Coast manager of the General Electric company, at a luncheon given at the Hotel Oakland yesterday by the Chamber of Commerce in honor of Gerard Swope, president of the company, and G. E. Emmons, vice-president.

Swope, speaking at the luncheon, declared that Oakland's industrial development has been "tremendous and impressive". He added that this city possesses the still more important advantages of health and happiness to its residents, and that its future, in his opinion, was even greater than the vision of its citizens painted it.

CITY'S FUTURE FORETOLD.
Other speakers at the luncheon included Vice-president Emmons of the General Electric company, Mayor John L. Davis, and Joseph R. Knowland, Harrison S. Robinson, president of the Chamber of Commerce, president.

"The future of Oakland from the standpoint of the man who lives here," was the subject of Knowland's address.

"The thing of greatest significance to Oakland is the fact that men of vision in all sections of the United States have focused their eyes upon this city, and have seen fit to come here," he declared. "The fundamentals of Oakland's prosperity, he said, are its location, its contented workmen, and the active spirit of co-operation between the various elements of the population."

"There are homes here for all," he said, referring to the contentment of Oakland's laboring population as compared with that in many other cities. "It is possible for every workman to have a tract of land, a house and flowers."

CO-OPERATION BIG FACTOR.
"Oakland's progress is also largely due to the excellent co-operation between the city government and the Chamber of Commerce."

Transportation and cheap power are the factors that are chiefly responsible for Oakland's great industrial progress, according to President Swope.

"These should make for a big and prosperous industrial community," he declared. "An instance of Oakland's transportation superiority is to be found in the new ferryboat 'Titanic' recently placed on the run between this city and San Francisco."

Swope and his party rode on the Hayward on their way here from San Francisco today.

"This vessel, the first electrically of the General Electric Company, who says Oakland's future will exceed its own expectations.

driven ferryboat to be used anywhere in the world, marks a great step for Oakland, and is an example of the way in which the West is beating the East.

"The industrial development of Oakland has been tremendous and impressive," said Swope. "This is my second visit to your city. I was really astounded to see the advance that you have made since I was last here, particularly in an industrial way. I have been hearing of Oakland a great deal lately—in fact, I have been receiving many telegrams from your business men that I feel that I was rather brave when I came here among you."

C. OF C. COMPLIMENTED.
"A Chamber of Commerce such as yours," said Swope, "plays an important part in the development of a community. There is a tendency upon the part of commerce and industry to become too busy in the making of money to take part in civic life. I was pleased when I found a number of months ago that you have a real Chamber of Commerce—a body which is functioning, and a body of which you may feel proud. There are many problems which no other organization than a Chamber of Commerce can well handle. For example, each year there is a period of time when a good many men ready and willing to work find no work to do. It is my impression that this can be overcome if we are willing to indulge in a little far-sighted selfishness. I do not feel that it takes philanthropy, but it requires the efforts of somebody to work out."

"A community is judged not only by its wealth and size but also by its health and happiness and by the men and women that live there. You, here, have everything that should go to make health and happiness and it seems to me when you provide this you have paved the way for nearly every other kind of prosperity. In addition to the industrial standpoint, you have transportation and cheap power which should make for a big and prosperous industrial city."

POWER DEVELOPMENT HUGE.
"The very fact that, in the state of California, you are using nearly twice as much electrical power as they are in the state of New York is proof of the progress of your state," said Swope. "Your future to me is very rosy—in fact

I think that it is brighter than your own vision would paint it." The luncheon was one of numerous functions attending the opening of the new plant in East Oakland.

Announcement by Dr. Addison that Oakland had been selected by the General Electric company as the site for its great broadcasting station, was one of the features of the luncheon.

According to Dr. Addison, this station, when completed, will be one of the most powerful and modern plants of its kind in the world. Most of the preliminaries to its construction already have been completed. The material for the two gigantic towers, upon which the aerial is to be strung, have been ordered. Plans are complete for most of the essential portions of the plant, including the laboratories and reception rooms which form part of great modern broadcasting stations.

COMPETITION WAS KEEN.
Oakland won in competition with many other Pacific Coast cities, all of which made efforts to be chosen as the site for the new station, Dr. Addison said. San Francisco offered the company the use of Telegraph Hill, Twin Peaks, Hunter's Point, or practically any other free location in the city. The company decided, however, that it would prefer to erect the station on its own property in Oakland.

TRY MAGNESIA FOR STOMACH TROUBLE

It Neutralizes Stomach Acidity, Prevents Food Fermentation, Softens Stomach and Acid Indigestion.

Doubtless if you are a sufferer from indigestion you have already tried pepsin, charcoal, drugs and various digestive aids and you know these things will not cure your trouble—in some cases do not even give relief.
But before giving up hope and deciding you are a chronic dyspeptic just try the effect of a little Bismarck Magnesia—not the ordinary commercial carbonate of lime, but the pure Bismarck Magnesia, which you can obtain from practically any druggist in either powdered or tablet form.
Take a teaspoonful of the powder or three compressed tablets with a little water after your next meal, and see what a difference this makes. It will instantly neutralize the dangerous, harmful acid in the stomach which now causes your food to ferment and sour, making gas, wind, flatulence, heartburn and the bloated or heavy, lumpy feeling that seems to follow most everything you eat.
You will find that provided you take a little Bismarck Magnesia immediately after a meal, you can eat almost anything and enjoy it without any danger of pain or discomfort. To follow and, moreover, the continued use of the Bismarck Magnesia cannot injure the stomach in symptoms of acid indigestion.—Advertisement.

PLASTIC WATERPROOF PORTLAND CEMENT

In a building which was recently destroyed completely by fire, there were 600 sacks of Monolith Plastic Waterproof Portland Cement. After being subjected to terrific heat, this cement was drenched with water from fire hose and from several days of rain.

Incredible as it may seem, practically all of this Monolith Cement was recovered and was found to be in perfect condition and was used in constructing the foundations of the new building. This is but one example of the remarkable stamina possessed by Monolith—whether in the form of cement or finished concrete.

GIGANTIC WORK

OF S. F. HARBOR
TOLD BY CHIEFPresident McCallum of the Board Gives Figures On Port's Big Business.

The Alameda county commuters at their weekly luncheon at the Palace hotel in San Francisco yesterday learned something of the vastness of the business of the harbor from John McCallum, President of the State Board of Harbor Commissioners. He gave startling figures as to the increase of business at the port, and said that San Francisco has the only harbor in the United States with its departments all under one management. With a gross revenue of $200,000 a month, he showed that everything was in a prosperous condition. Approximately $5000 a year is earned on money deposited temporarily in a local bank before its transfer to the state treasurer, and $2000 a year is saved by paying bills in cash, thus earning a discount.

The switching charge on the belt line railroad controlled by the board, McCallum said, is only $2.30 as against $3.50 at Seattle. There are 41 piers providing five billions square feet of cargo area and 15 miles of berthing space with accommodations for 250 vessels at one time. The revenue has increased 65 per cent during the last ten years, while the cost of management has advanced over 8 per cent.

The San Francisco ferry building, according to the speaker, accommodates more people than any other depot in the world, handling 210,000 a day during 1922, an increase of $5,000 daily over the previous year.

High Blood Pressure

Why People Die

In Case Record No. 3361, Massachusetts General Hospital, Dr. Richard C. Cabot gives the common causes of death as: First, high blood pressure; second, disease of the lungs; third, disease of the heart; fourth, disease of the kidneys. Note that more people die of high blood pressure than from any of the other common causes. Yet the average person, who would take immediate steps to remedy his condition if he had a diagnosis, usually waits until high blood pressure has become a chronic condition, allowing his heart to become enlarged, allowing his arteries to harden, allowing the tiny blood vessels of the brain to become strained until finally one of them bursts. And while this may not happen at once, the crash is certain to come some time. No one escapes.

Symptoms

The symptoms of high blood pressure are slight. Dr. P. A. Faught gives them as slight migratory pains, persistent headache, feeling of fullness in the head, cold hands and feet, lowered vitality, nervousness and constipation. And according to vital statistics—one out of every three persons who have them dies in a year. In other words, one-third of the people with high blood pressure who are reading this paper today will be dead in a year. These are plain, scientific facts. You cannot escape them. Now, putting it squarely up to you, what are you going to do about it? Are you going to drift along to serious consequences or are you going to take steps to remedy your condition? During the past eighteen months the Witter Water treatment has been successful in 3000 cases of high blood pressure. Isn't it the sensible thing, at least, to get full information about Witter Water at once?

Set against a background of unusual lighting and scenic effects, "Oh, Oakland!" will be presented in the Oakland Municipal Auditorium the night of June 7.

While it was originally sponsored by the Oakland Advertising Club, the latter organization has obtained the co-operation of dramatic and musical and dancing talent from other Oakland organizations. Members of the Oakland Press Club have volunteered to make up two scenes in the spectacle which will show the newspaper folk at work gathering facts about Oakland.

Among the dancing girls will be Burdette Spencer, who is a student at the University of California and a pupil of Miss Marie Allen, who originated the annual Duck Pageant staged by Lakeside School pupils.

The GREATEST CORD IMPROVEMENTS of Recent Years!

These Miller developments make satisfactory service sure!

It takes more than good materials to give satisfactory tire mileage. They must be so evenly balanced that you get full value from every one!

Uniform Cord Construction

For years, tire builders have considered it impossible to lay cords evenly on a tire. Some layers would be shorter than others. These short layers would break first.

By a distinctive process, Miller Tires are built with absolutely uniform cord construction. The strain of wear is evenly distributed over the entire carcass.

Flat Top Tread and Supple Carcass

The Miller flat tread and balanced, supple carcass still further increase the mileage of Miller Tires. These features reduce friction in the carcass—give more road contact and longer life in tread and carcass.

You cannot get all of these advantages in any other tire. That is why Miller Cords always save you money—time—trouble, in passenger and commercial use. Authorized Miller dealers insure proper treatment.

Good Molars Are Required for Colonial Service

PARIS, May 17 (By the Associated Press).—Minister of War Maginot has ordered that any candidate for the colonial army "must have a sufficient number of good teeth." The decree says that by sufficient and good teeth is meant six pairs of teeth directly opposite one another on the upper and lower gums, of which two pairs must be molars or pre-molars, and two pairs front or canine teeth.

Many of the men who want to enlist in Algeria and Morocco were found to have defective teeth and Minister Maginot's ruling was especially intended for North Africa.

The Senegalese battalions show splendid rows of shining teeth. "They are the peer of any fighting units in the world, but I'll back them against the best eaters any army has ever produced," a colored colonial officer said the other day, referring to the fine presence of his troops in general and their wonderful molars and canines in particular.

Then he added with a touch of dry humor: "You see, we come bails."

Newspaper Costs Bureau Is Plan

CHICAGO, May 17. — The establishment of a national bureau of cost finding for newspapers was advocated at the final session of the Inland Press Association here last night and a committee was appointed to perfect such an organization. The committee is to have such a cost finding system of dollars and cents, rather than percentages, according to the resolution adopted at the meeting.

Yokohama Import Trade Is Heavy

BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE. LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE. TOKYO, May 17.—Foreign trade in Yokohama in March, according to customs reports there, was unusual for that port, the balance of trade being in favor of imports. The total value of goods exported was ¥54,000,000 ($27,000,000) while the imports amounted to ¥60,000,000 ($30,000,000). Generally speaking, the trade was an improvement.

Indicted Oil Men Lose First Skirmish

FORT WORTH, Tex., May 17.—Eighty-seven oil men under federal indictment for alleged oil frauds lost the first skirmish in their trials yesterday when it was ruled that the grand jury returning the indictments was improperly drawn and was a valid grand jury. The ruling was made by Judge Benjamin Bledsoe of Los Angeles, who arrived in Fort Worth Tuesday night to begin the trials of those charged.

Horses' Shoe Spark Fires Gas Station

BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE. LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE. COVINGTON, La., May 17.—When a runaway team of horses crashed into a gasoline filling station here they made such an effort to escape that their hoofs struck fire from the pavement and caused an explosion of the leaking gasoline. The horses managed to escape as sparks of fire endangered their lives. Two filling pumps were wrecked.

Firemen Struggle to Salvage Baby Chicks

DEPIANCE, O., May 17.—Navy lives were saved by prompt work of Delancey firemen at the County Children's Home. The lives were those of over 100 newly hatched chicks. Defective wiring is blamed for the fire, which produced a heavy smoke that nearly suffocated the chicks in a brooder.

MADE 1000 DAVE WING, LUND INTO $100,000 TO END KOHL CONTESTS

Uncle, Cousin Benefit by the Settlement of Financier's Estate.

REDWOOD CITY, May 17.—A settlement of $100,000 by Mrs. Marion Louderback Lord to relatives who have been contesting the estate of C. Fredrick Kohl, San Francisco capitalist who committed suicide in November, 1921, yesterday ended the litigation which has been pending in superior court here. The estate is valued at $1,500,000. The action closes contests which have kept the estate in court for some time, and was announced by attorneys.

Several actions brought by relatives not named in either of the two wills which Kohl made prior to his death at Pebble Beach Lodge, were thrown out of court. The settlement is made with attorneys for Harry Hunter, an uncle of Kohl, and Leon Baxter, a cousin, who claim $50,000 each in a will made in 1917. The major beneficiary is Mrs. Lord, who received the bulk of the estate. Mrs. Lord was not mentioned in the 1917 will, but was amply provided for in the later will which cut off Hunter and Baxter.

It was the contention of the last two named that Mrs. Lord had exerted "undue influence" while Kohl was ill, to have a new will made in her behalf.

Belgian Rail Strike Nears New Crisis

BRUSSELS, May 17.—(By the Associated Press).—The communications strike entered a new phase today owing to the refusal of the non-striking railroad men in the Antwerp system to work alongside the men put at work under the government mobilization order. The government majority in parliament is firm against yielding to the strikers' demands and further classes are expected to be called up by the authorities and appeal made to the civil union to supply workers. This union, in fact, began operations last night.

Women Look Into Harbor Development

By EDNA R. KINARD.

The harbor development scheme is being given consideration by the organized women of Oakland. A conference has been called with Commissioner Albert E. Carter by the officers of the President's Council of Alameda County for Tuesday morning, when he will present to the leaders the full plan for pushing work along the western and southern fronts which will assure Oakland's commercial supremacy.

It is most likely that the board of directors of the Council will give their unqualified endorsement to the development plans and get squarely back of any movement which will carry them out. The executive meeting will be held in the directors' room of the Commercial Trust Company. Mrs. H. J. Platts, president, will preside.

The constitution and by-laws of the President's Council is scheduled for amendment, permitting regular monthly meetings to take up important matters. Mrs. E. C. Carter, Mrs. A. B. Glaser and Mrs. C. E. Wilson are named to the revision committee.

The Community Property Law luncheon, honoring those of the Alameda delegation who supported the bill through the state legislature is definitely set for Thursday, September 13. The function will

The annual meeting of the California Civic League of Women Voters, Northern section, will claim the presence of several score official delegates and visitors in Unity Hall, Berkeley, tomorrow. Berkeley Civic Center will host this important conference, which will open at 10:30 a. m.

The morning will be given over to the disposal of a mass of accumulated business. Election of officers will take place before the noon recess.

Reports of the annual convention of the National League of Women Voters held last month in Des Moines, Ia., will engage attention during the afternoon. Miss Martin Deane, president of the state league; Mrs. E. J. Mott, member of the San Francisco board of education, and Mrs. Parker S. Madux, president of San Francisco Civic Center, who were delegates to the national conference, will offer reviews of its work.

The annual luncheon of the Delphian club will be a brilliant function of Thursday, May 24, at Hotel Claremont. Covers will be laid for several hundred guests. The festivities mark the conclusion of an interesting year of study, which has been led by Miss Suzanne Throp. With the opening of the new season, Miss Throp will resume her lectureship.

Dr. Rudolph I. Coffee has been invited to be the principal speaker at the May luncheon. A musical program of music will be rendered by visiting artists.

Mrs. R. C. Dullies, Marlett 571, is responsible for reservations. An equipped kit for a visiting nurse will be purchased by the Oakland Federation of Mothers clubs to express its appreciation of this phase of welfare work. A fund to restore in part the illustrated by fire in Hawthorne school is opened by the federation with an appropriation of $5. A recommendation is made that each of the local associations make a gift for this purpose. The Hawthorne library was a cherished institution, enthusiastically sponsored by the mothers' club. Its loss has promoted Oakland Federation to participate in its restoration.

The sum of $530 has been expended to the report of Mrs. F. L. Gordon, up to date in the classes by Oakland federation, ac-Burckhalter, child hygiene, chairman, presented before the final meeting of the year this week.

Glenview Women's club celebrated its annual links today with a charmingly planned function which welcomed members only. The clubhouse, which is nestled in Treble Glen, was festooned in summer's blossoms in honor of the occasion, which concluded the year's activities. Club artists participated in the program.

Mrs. H. J. Platts, president, welcomed the members in a quaint Colonial gown, originally made for her mother.

Big Sisters will meet at a round table in the Oakland Y. W. C. A. tomorrow at 2 p. m. Plans for the coming year will be discussed. A nominating committee will be appointed. Mrs. Sidney Hassell, president, will preside.

Veteran Gets Home Through Tribune

Soldier in the Scottish Highlands, veteran of the World War and the Indian campaigns, Lee Scotland is now a home owner and for the rest of his days an enthusiastic citizen of Oakland.

He and Mrs. Davidson have acquired a home at 2814 Division street, through the offices of F. H. Lee, 1756 Franklin street.

Davidson came to Oakland in the year and soon joined the army of homeseekers now investing in Oakland realty. The following advertisement in The OAKLAND TRIBUNE attracted Davidson's attention:

6-ROOM; garage; large lot; Fruit; dist.; $2,750; $250 down; bal. $30 mo. F. H. Lee, 1756 Franklin.

The property was formerly owned by Lee Robinson of the Bank of Alameda.

BAD CHECK MAN YOUNG BURGLAR TO SERVE TERM

Charles Smith, known also as "Air-Brake" Smith, because of his having perfected an invention having to do with air brakes on railway cars, today was sentenced by Superior Judge George Samuels to an indeterminate term in San Quentin. He recently was convicted of uttering fictitious checks. At his trial he admitted two previous terms in San Quentin.
Probation Officer Leonard D. Compton recommended against probation. In his report was a letter from the Oakland police department, which read in part: "Smith's mother stated to us that she was more contented when Charles was in jail, for then she knew where he was."
Albert Pahn, charged with burglary, was sent to prison for a term of three years. He is accused of having entered the property store of A. A. Gibbs, 2003 Telegraph avenue, and taking a quantity of merchandise therefrom.
According to the probation officer's report, Pahn has "a long juvenile court record, beginning in 1915, based on his incorrigibility at home, burglaries, thefts of automobiles and attempted burglaries."

Court Not Love Creator, Lonely Mother Is Told

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS
LEASD WIRE TO TRIBUNE
LOS ANGELES, May 17.—Mrs. L. Bertha Sheehan asked the law to make her children live with her but was told the Superior Court "could not manufacture affection."
Ethel Sheehan, 29 years old; married, but her husband, who, after domestic differences, left their mother and made a home for himself in an apartment house, grouped themselves together before Judge Edwin F. Hahn, in the juvenile court, while Mrs. Sheehan stood alone, eyeing them hungrily.
When John joined his brother and sister, the mother said she "could stand it no longer" and so appealed to the court to send them all home.
"Have you ever stopped to think there might be some fault on your side?" the court asked.
"Judge," replied the mother, "I am a good woman. There is nothing wrong with my character. I can prove it to you."
"You don't understand my question," the court said. "It is the task of every parent to keep the love and affection of his children. You are responsible for the children leaving you. You cannot catch flies with vinegar. You must give affection to gain affection. I can order your children to support you, but it is up to you to make them love you and live with you. I cannot manufacture affection here."

CATS' LEGACY IS HELD ILLEGAL

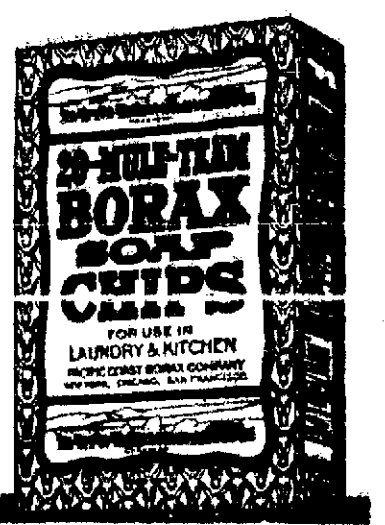

A cat cannot inherit under the will of its owner, declared Superior Judge E. C. Robinson today when the estate of the late Dr. Edith Strong was before him for adjudication of a claim of $8.50 for meat for two cats.
Dr. Strong, who died at St. Anthony's hospital, October 19, 1922, from botulism, gave certain bequests to friends and relatives and directed that the residue of her estate be used to support "Dolly and my other cat" in the home of Mrs. Lawrence Cortez, Santa Barbara.
Mrs. Cortez appeared in court today and presented a bill of $8.50, which she had paid out for meat for the two cats, she declared. She also asked that the $8.50 residue of the estate be given to her to pay for keeping the animals.
While allowing the bill for the meat, Judge Robinson denied her request for the additional money. It is probable that this will be distributed to John L. Cole of St. Louis, Mo., an uncle of Dr. Strong's.

TRAVEL TIDE STARTS.

Every west-bound train to leave Chicago on the first day of the summer rates to the Pacific Coast set a new mark in the number of extra sections and volume of traffic, according to a report made by railroad passenger officials to Californians, Inc.

Without question, the advertising campaign conducted by this organization is bringing results. The hundred thousand and more letters received by Californians, Inc., speak of a much larger number of persons reached by the announcements. In addition, the east has had a hard winter and the thoughts of many of its citizens have been turned to a land of sunshine and opportunity.

The assistant general passenger agent of the Santa Fe Railroad has reported that all previous records for one day's passenger movement from any eastern point to California were broken when the first low rate train left Chicago in sixteen sections. It is his estimate that the bookings from Chicago for California for the opening week of the excursion season will require more than 225 Pullmans. According to the eastern agents a large proportion of this travel is being booked directly to northern California.

The Southern Pacific agents in Chicago tell the same story. Bookings for the opening week are nearly double those of a year ago and the first low rate train was the heaviest ever despatched from this point for California. It was fourteen sections heavier than the first west-bound train on the line for last year's excursion season.

There is every reason to believe that the travel to this part of the state in June will be heavier than it was last June, when thousands were attracted by the Shriners convention. Upon the success of this advertising campaign, it is probable, will be based a program for its continuation. To the credit of Californians, Inc., it may be said, the work performed was of a vision broader than the limits of any one municipality and that all of the publicity and correspondence was characterized by an absence of flamboyant "boost" and by a strict and eloquent presentation of the truth. This part of the state is united as it has never before and is ready, on the instant, to respond to inquiries and set forth its resources and opportunities before the world.

A CHANGE IN TONE.

The shipping world, particularly that great part which is represented by Great Britain, is looking with anxious eyes to America. A few months ago when the ship subsidy bill failed there was rejoicing across the pond; now men wonder.

When the bill failed British papers said America's dream of becoming a great shipping power were shattered; that the United States had realized it was not a maritime nation; that the effort of the United States to wrest the mercantile supremacy of the sea from Great Britain had ignominiously collapsed. There was a great deal more in the same strain. The American Economist has published a half hundred expressions of the leading journals in England. The South Wales Daily News put it like this: "It is a relief to know that at least one of America's big sticks has broken in her hands."

Now there is an indication that the sigh of relief came too soon. The policy of the Harding administration has been shown to be one to make the most of the defeat of the bill. "Don't give up the ships" idea is gaining strength with the development of the conviction that lower freight rates will react favorably upon the marketing of American agricultural and manufacturing products.

Foreign competition looked to America to dispose of its ships to private Americans with little capital and less of experience. The Government shows a disposition to put the fleet to work regardless of the freight rates. If this is the feeling given to American shipping will be sufficiently imposing to cause a change in the tone of those who exulted.

The battle for the rulership of the waves, after all, may not be over.

WELCOMING GENERAL ELECTRIC.

In welcoming the General Electric Company yesterday Oakland greeted an organization which is genuinely alive to its responsibilities for community service and keenly desirous of becoming an active factor for civic betterment. President Gerard Swope left no doubt with his hearers that he is not only acutely aware of the obligations which come with his position as chief executive of a corporation of international significance, but is possessed of a vision outside of the field of economics and industry.

President Swope, the vice president of the company, and the Pacific Coast representative, told the Oakland citizens who assembled at the welcoming luncheon of the thorough investigation which preceded the selection of Oakland as the site for the plant which is newly built in this city. There can be no better guarantee of Oakland's future, no stronger testimonial of its industrial advantages, than those which come out of the calm deliberation of the outsider who has money to invest. The General Electric Company tested out their faith in this community with their lamp factory. When they were ready to erect the first unit of another plant they looked everywhere and again selected this city.

Members of the Chamber of Commerce were told by their distinguished guest that representative men, such as were present, can take a great part in solving the problem of recurrent business cycles. The responsibility of business in general toward the elimination of this war in conditions and toward the end that there will be no periods in which men who wish work and whose work is needed by the community cannot find jobs was stressed sincerely and emphatically.

The General Electric Company has erected the first unit of its plant in this city and in addition will construct a great broadcasting station. For years it has operated a Mazda lamp factory here which supplies the entire West. There is every reason to believe that within a short time a second and larger unit will be constructed to the new factory.

Certainly, as was evidenced at yesterday's meeting, the officers and company feel that they are definitely established as a part of this community and ready and anxious to assume their places in its activities. And the community is wholehearted in its welcome.

SONOMA FESTIVAL OPENS.

Sonoma county is honoring a national figure and a kindly neighbor this week. This afternoon a three days' festival for Luther Burbank and for some of the products of his genius is being opened with pageant and ceremonies in which the plant wizard, his wife, and his four year old niece will take part.

Many more persons have thanked or blessed Burbank than have honored him in formal manner. He has increased the wealth of farmers and brought wealth to communities by giving them distinctive crops. His friends have been plants and flowers and his labors close to the soil.

The Burbank Golden Jubilee and Sonoma County Prune Festival at Santa Rosa promises to be a notable pageant. It will tell the story of Sonoma county and it will afford the widest possible opportunity for a united community expression. All of California joins in extending good will to the enterprise and felicitations to the man who is being honored.

Another graduation at the University of California may be held in the city. Certainly, the crowds were so great this year as to cause inconvenience and, in some cases, pitiful discrimination. With more than five thousand persons denied admission there were many in the group outside who held tickets which, in the face of the general rush and admittance. Among the largest crowds to assemble anywhere in California are those which press about the Greek Theater on commencement day.

Norwegians in the Eastbay are celebrating today with their countrymen the world over the writing of the constitution at Eidsvold. This document, which gave the day a significance in Norway similar to the Fourth of July in this country, was completed on May 17, 1814. It set forth the refusal of the people to be ceded by Denmark to Sweden, the claiming of full sovereignty, and the start of a defensive war. With music and speeches, and in the Danish-Norwegian church the local Norwegians are marking the anniversary.

What is needed, of course, is an inventive genius who can conserve the energy wasted by the waration dancers.

Holders of a number of interesting theories which have nothing to do with Einstein or relativity, are awaiting the eclipse of the Turkish crescent moon.

There is nothing more important right now than the material and design of the graduating dress.

THE OLD SOAK WILL NOT GO FISHING.

"It's time to be thinkin' about goin' a-fishin'," said Mr. Clem Hawley yesterday, "but I ain't thinkin' about it, I ain't."

"I ain't goin' a-fishin' this year. Since the thirteenth commandment begun an' the world came to an end, humanly speakin', I was as reglar about fishin' as I was about mixin' a little spring parts in my liquor."

"Spadin' up the back yard for to fix a place for garden as an' I mist I'd see a perky little robin settin' on the fence, givin' the clouds the once over, and then purty soon I'd see an angieworm squirm in up o'n the ground, to see if the robin was there."

"That worm's been way down under the frost line all winter, ripenin' himself an' fattenin' himself an' predestinatin' himself, as the Good Book says, for that there robin, an' there ain't any insurmountable way of Providence that the way that brings that angieworm at his juncion right to the craw of that bird at its emptiest. You can't see that happenin' every year and not believe in a power that rules from Greenland's icy mountains to India's coral strands, as Solomon says."

"I'd kind of remember somethin' when I seen that. I'd remember they was fish somewhere that was hungry, too. An' I'd fix me a can of bait an' get the right kind of a lunch together, an' me an' Jake Smith an' Al would take our poles an' beat it to the fishin' hole."

"Fishin' used for to calm my nerves down. The ain't anythin' in the world calms the nerves down like settin' in the sun fishin' an' thinkin' what you would do if you had a million dollars. After a while you get to thinkin' mebbe if you was to dig down a ways right where you're settin' at, you'd find one of these here ledges of gold, an' then you would have a million dollars."

"An' you still over to Al?"

"Al, there's gold in this here hole."

"Oh-huh," says Al, "I knowed it!"

"An' Jake Smith says he knowed it, too. An' then all three of you get to talkin' bout what you're gonna do with all your money, confidential an' friendly, an' you talk all afternoon, sort of easy an' drawin', an' when the bottles are all empty an' you go home for supper you been rich an' happy all afternoon."

"There ain't no nobody in the world can take away from you an' Jake an' Al that million dollars you had the use of all day."

"But this year I ain't goin' fishin' no more. I ain't no fishin' any more! Not that kind of fishin'! You can't take out a bottle of ginger ale in your lunch basket an' come home worth a million. Least-ways, I can't."

"The was an angieworm come twinstin' up o'n the ground this mornin', lookin' for his robin. He seen me an' I stared at him. I looked at him melancholy an' he looked melancholy at me. I dropped a tear down onto him, an' he winked at himself, like the shape of a question mark, like he was askin' me why my heart was breakin'."

"Hille yourself, little critter, hille yourself, quick," I told him. "Hille yourself from me. I'm just that and I could eat you myself!"

Console yourself, when you are feeling hoarse, with thinking "Virtue is its own reward."

Though on the loom of toll and care he was a

The wolf men call success, he glimpsed the light

On distant Mount Olympus Day or night

He drank from Aganippe's fountain; strove

To reach on Helicon Euterpe's grove.

As here and there before his eager sight

She flitted coyly on the sacred lute

Whose head she veils in hazy clouds above.

At twilight's hour he hastened to depart

From meddling mart of counter, mints and merriment

To breathe the air of Poesy's pure art

And when his soul in her alluring charms

She reads to him the runes writ in her heart

MAKES THE WORLD BLOOM.

EXCERPTS from the NATIONAL PRESS

New York Herald: The decision of Chairman Lasker of the Shipping Board to keep the vessels under his jurisdiction on dry for the present is fitting. The United States, having denied the right of other nations to bring liquor into its harbors, even under seal, would permit its ships, owned by the government itself, to sell intoxicants outside the three-mile limit. Most Americans will contend that if we are to be dry ashore we should be dry afloat, no matter how the present statute is construed.

Boston Transcript: The non-stop transatlantic flight of Lieutenants Oakley G. Kelly and John A. Mearns in the monoplane T-2 takes rank with the greatest exploits of modern aviation. It is an extraordinary tribute to the fortitude, skill and endurance of the two aviators, and it is hardly less a tribute to the efficiency of the army plane and the Liberty motor which bore them from Hempstead, N. Y., to Rockwell Field, San Diego, an estimated distance of 2700 miles, in the marvelous time of twenty-six hours fifty minutes, forty-eight and two-fifths seconds.

Philadelphia Ledger: Most of us are wondering profanely why coal stars so dear. A mine president's sworn testimony before a Federal Judge at Scrubury, Pa., may help satisfy that curiosity. The mine president testified his colliery had cost $750,000 three and a half years ago. Out of his earnings in that period he was able to pay off a $725,000 debt and pay $400,000 in commissions. In a year and a half, he said, the colliery had earned a million and a half.

Memphis Commercial Appeal: Two items in the recent news throw a light into the dark and dismal recesses from which the world campaign of the Communist conspirators is being conducted. At the trial of one of the avowed Communists in Michigan the secretary of the American branch of the organization admitted that a considerable part of the money raised in the United States for the relief of the starving in Russia was used for other purposes. Not a small part of these funds was spent in this country for spreading the cause of Communism.

Brooklyn Eagle: Two boys have achieved Phi Beta Kappa membership under unusual circumstances. At Cornell Edward Keichan Campbell, a Brooklyn boy, who is blind, and at Columbia Edward Roche Hardy Jr., who is a Columbia senior at 14, have been elected to the fraternity, whose criterion of admission is distinguished scholarship. Which boy deserves most credit? The blind boy, surely, for the handicap he overcame was great.

Philadelphia Ledger: Most of us are wondering profanely why coal stars so dear. A mine president's sworn testimony before a Federal Judge at Scrubury, Pa., may help satisfy that curiosity. In a year and a half, he said, the colliery had earned a million and a half.

Brooklyn Eagle: Our university presidents think they know what student pranks are; but they really don't. Scotland takes the palm. Aberdeen University boys kidnapped their new rector, Sir Robert Horn, put a Tut-Ankh-Amen costume on him and paraded him through the streets on a yellow milk cart drawn by a circus mule. President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard will never seek a transfer to Aberdeen.

Food producers leave them to go to the towns and cities to become food consumers. If every acre of productive land in California were close to an improved highway there would be more farm workers.

Most of your pains, pleasures also, are imaginary."—Chicago Enterprise.

"Beres Springs theater honored the memory of Steve Douglas, the violinist, who died in San Francisco Sunday, May 6, and was buried there on Tuesday. A NEW DAY.
Come on, let's start anew today. Let's fling the old mistakes away. The failures and the hurts and stings, The misery of by-gone things, And wipe the slate of what has been.

Here is a morning fresh and clean, Unfurnished by a rusty past, A day no shame has overcast.

What was has gone. Along the way Let us with splendor fling it today. With this hour let us start anew, Brave for the task we find to do. What if we have not borne with fate?

To prove our worth 'tis not too late; With what of life remains we can In every trial play the man.

Forget the past though thick with bees! With shame and failure and regret, Here is a new and shining day Of which no mortal tongue can say. An evil word. 'Tis yet too soon! Until the fading afternoon It waits upon us all to see How we shall write its history.

No man so low but cannot say: 'I will not stoop to shame today! Beginning now I will be true, This day I start my life anew. I can be useful and I will. Life has a place for me to fill.' Who would be good has but to say, 'I start my life anew today.'

YOUNG WOMAN OF TODAY.

Can it be that a change is coming over the spirit of the dream in which the present day youth are pictured as being so inferior in all ways to those elders who view with alarm their habits and actions? The immediate cause of the picture is found in the keynote address made by Mrs. Thomas G. Winter, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, at the annual convention of the New Jersey Federation of Women's Clubs at Atlantic City.

Mrs. Winter asserted that she believed that her daughter was a better mother than she was. She tude on the question was one that might well be entertained by the majority of mothers of grown-up daughters. She remarked that the young women of today are the hope of the future and she was iconoclastic enough to ask why it was necessary for us to be so fearful of this young generation.

Probably by this time the audience was interested and attentive. Continuing, Mrs. Winter informed them that it was stupid to say that the younger generation was going to the devil. It was her opinion that the young woman of today has power and liberty and self-respect and a good intellect. She said: "I am not afraid of her. She will acquit herself well."

We think that Mrs. Winter knows what she is talking about.—Hartford Courant.

Said the Judge: "I sentence you to be taken from this court to the prison, where you will be hanged by the neck until you are dead on Thursday, February 17." Said the darky prisoner: "You all doesn't meant dis comin' February, does you, judge?"—Wichita Eagle.

PERSONAL HEALTH SERVICE

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

PTOSIS WITHOUT ANY SLUMP.

A downward sagging or displacement of stomach or intestine is a common cause of stasis, or constipation and of the various symptoms of auto-intoxication, although the posture of the individual may appear good. Indeed, some of the most misleading cases in which the symptoms suggest such lesions as ulcer or cancer, have been found to be nothing else than ptosis, or downward displacement of the stomach, demonstrable only by X-ray pictures.

Sometimes the abdomen is prominent, though it does not slump. But the digestive disturbance grows slowly a little worse despite treatment with "digestive tablets," and the patient begins to lose weight and strength, and this loss of strength lowers nutrition and tends to still further increase the sagging of those self-sustaining viscus organs.

Indigestion, which is quickly relieved by reclining, especially lying with the hips a foot or so higher than the shoulders, suggests ptosis as a cause. In such cases attacks of dizziness or giddiness are sometimes prevented by lying in that position for a time after eating.

When considerable underweight is a symptom, it is essential that the patient shall be nourished to the limit, given the best cure and forced feeding, in order to take up the slack. The same is true in a case of floating kidney. A woman with a loose kidney is usually poor and lean. Nervousness of course lessens her appetite and nervousness.

One of the few serious objections to radical fasting or limitation of the diet, according to Dr. Saaghi who discussed the subject in the Gazette degli Ospedali e delle Cliniche, is the possibility of favoring sags or ptoses. An individual predisposed to the condition. But heaven only knows which individuals are likely to stand on a fast. We are hearty in our faith in fasting for other falls and we make no bones about urging the merits of the Bread and Milk Club when overfed, bloated, or obese individuals here where food is so attractive—and far be it from us to produce any slump in the human race.

THE GLAD VACATION TIME.

This is the time of year when there's a lot of fun to be had choosing the places for a vacation. If window-shopping, you know, where you peek but don't buy, but especially like spending money that was a gift. There are such a lot of things that can be had for the money and for quite a while let's see anything is bought you spend it for one thing, then another—your mind.

In the matter of a vacation, I'm thinking especially of those who have only a week or two to indulge in summer pleasure and must get all they can out of it. Rest, recuperation, fun and rejuvenation for the body. It is a divine privilege when it means all that. But it can be stretched out quite a bit in the choosing game in which the whole idea is to get the summer resort where you can afford—until the place is so "where it says, 'Terms per day.'"

At that moment if we have before us a number of places where it would be just as well to camp if one had the right company, a few congenial people who would not crab at inconveniences but would laugh at them and all the unpleasant happenings and an idea of fair play to have the place close to a running stream where it is shady when you want it to be and sunny when you want it to be and never when you are in from frothing porcupines over an open fire.—Clare Davis in Stockton Record.

Don't Look Into Her Eyes to Find Out What She's Thinking—Just Watch Her Hands!

MISS SEVAH PEETZ BROWN, Oakland dance artist, is here shown illustrating a few of the almost countless emotions that may be revealed by means of the hands. Left to right, the four poses of Miss Peetz express (1) MISCHIEF; (2) SORROW; (3) DISAPPROVAL; (4) SUPPLICATION. According to Miss Peetz, there is virtually no limit to the number and variety of things that may be said by means of the hands. Often, she declares, we express more with our hands than we realize, and it is frequently more important to watch another person's hands than his or her eyes, lips, or facial expression.

45 SPEEDERS TAKEN INSIDE 20-MILE ZONE

The first large anti-speed drive in the city's 20-mile zones, in the regime of Traffic Sergeant Charles Thompson, was inaugurated last night by two squads of officers, and as a result 45 drivers, including some of the leading men and women of the city, were taken into the speed traps and were presented with yellow slips, six were women.

All have been instructed to appear in police court next Wednesday to answer to charges of exceeding the speed limit in automobiles. Of the 45 drivers who fell into the speed traps and were presented with yellow slips, six were women.

Two squads of officers under direction of Policemen George Doonan and Edward Hughes, tagged the alleged speeders. Fifteen of them were stopped at Forty-first street and Broadway, nine at Sixty and Grand avenues, and twenty-one at Ellita and Grand avenues. All of these locations are in the 20-mile zone.

The women tagged by the traffic squads were according to the police, driving their machines at 20, 25, 30, 35, 40 and 45 miles an hour, respectively.

Hands Show Emotions; Speech Is Not Needed

By FRANCES MONTGOMERY.

If you would discern the moods and characteristics of others, watch their hands. The lines of your palms may be read but they do not begin to tell all that may be portrayed in the way you handle your hands. Our very intelligence has been classified by the number of digital movements of which we are capable. It has been discovered that man has 27 monkeys 21 and dogs only 7 digital movements.

Stage directors watch an actor's hands. If he is self-conscious the hands are the greatest tell tale evidence. Now there are many postures and poses of the hands which have been standardized for the stage, for instance, and which are recognized as representing to the audience the moods of the actor and give emphasis to his lines. Then there is the pantomime, a mimetic kind of entertainment accompanied by music and supplied with elaborate and skillful gestures in place of speech. But after all the origin of these pantomimic expressions of the hands was in the very natural digital movements which we all invariably use whether we have a knowledge of pantomime or not.

PORTRAY EMOTIONS.
 We can not help portraying our emotions by the motions of our hands and the less self-conscious we are the more marked the portrayal. The first days of pantomime as entertainment in medieval Italy found the figure of Harlequin passing his entire time on the stage posturing in five different attitudes. These postures with distinct names of the hands were sufficient to tell the story. Now it is as the poet says: The movements of her two white hands a million things declare.

The two white hands in this instance, which belong to Sevah Peetz Brown of Oakland, are telling you only four of the million little things the poet declares they are capable of. The girl in the picture, by digital movements is portraying the emotions of mischief, sorrow, disapproval and supplication. Of course the facial expression must co-ordinate.

TIME ASKED ON BRIDGE REMOVAL AND S. P. PLANS

In order that arrangements for temporary service between Oakland and Alameda may be satisfactorily made and to allow for the presentation of the plans at a hearing in Oakland on May 22, the Railroad Commission today requested of the War Department an extension of time in the matter of the removal of the Webster street bridge across the estuary.

The bridge had been ordered dismantled by June 30, the work to begin on May 29. The commission is to hold a hearing in Oakland on Tuesday in connection with a protest against the abandonment of service by the Southern Pacific, and has instructed that road and the San Francisco-Oakland Terminal Railways to make a report on their proposals.

Mrs. George Q. Chase, who was to have played against Mrs. C. F. Ford yesterday in the Subscription Cup contest, wished to withdraw and allow Mrs. M. J. Milton and Mrs. Ford to proceed with their semi-final match, and this was agreed to and Mrs. Milton, who is gradually recovering her old time form when she played as Miss Josephine Johnson, defeated Mrs. Chase 3-1. Mrs. Ford, who is a most dangerous opponent for any scratch player to tackle, won her match on the 19th, where she holed out in 6 to Miss Whitney's 7.

Today Mrs. Milton and Mrs. Ford will play off the final on an even basis. Mrs. Ford has already secured one win in this long drawn out contest, and will endeavor to secure a second point to even with Mrs. Ford, while Mrs. Milton will be striving for her first point in the Cup contest.

The Sequoyah Club championship, the qualifying round of which was contested last Saturday, was not very well supported, but the first round match play draws which will be announced tomorrow, will include nearly all of the possible club champions. Archie Andrew, who is just recovering from a severe attack of the flu, is still South recuperating, and will be a notable absentee from this year's event. Thirty-two players will contest the first round match play on Saturday, the second round will be postponed until the following Saturday to allow the San Jose 46 side team match to proceed next Sunday.

BOWLING

The Pacific Box team took the lead in the Paraffine Companies Inc., Bowling League by taking all four points in their match with the Pabco Specials with whom they were tied for first place. The Point Department took three of the four points for their games with the Mechanical Department, and the Shipping Department did likewise with the Babcolins. Getchel, Redmond and Norman were high markers, 223 being the high score.

There promises to be a lot of excitement tonight at the Bowling Auditorium on Thirteenth street when Tony Rossi's Florists of Fruitvale will meet the Center Bowling in a duck pin match. The Florists have a three-game lead in the East-bay Duck Pin Handicap League. Cardinet Candles meet the Auditorium Flashes, while the Steinbeck Meats meet the Center Bowling. One of the matches will take place at the Bowling Center on Eleventh street.

Do You Know?

"What did Ed Leader, the new Yale rowing coach, do that seems to have put Yale back in the first rank?"

M. E. W.

Leader discarded the British stroke and rigging of the shell and replaced them with American ideas and the change seems to have been successful.

"With so many prominent athletes winning Rhodes scholarships, isn't it possible that the teams Oxford sends over in a few years may be composed entirely of Americans?"

G. F.

It is not only possible, but very probable that this will happen. Lawson Robertson, track coach at the University of Pennsylvania, thinks that it will happen within the next two or three years.

"Is Luis Firpo, the South American champion, a Spaniard?"

J. J.

No. Firpo is of Italian extraction.

"How the establishment of a license committee in New York curbed the power of William Muldoon, chairman of the boxing commission?"

D. E.

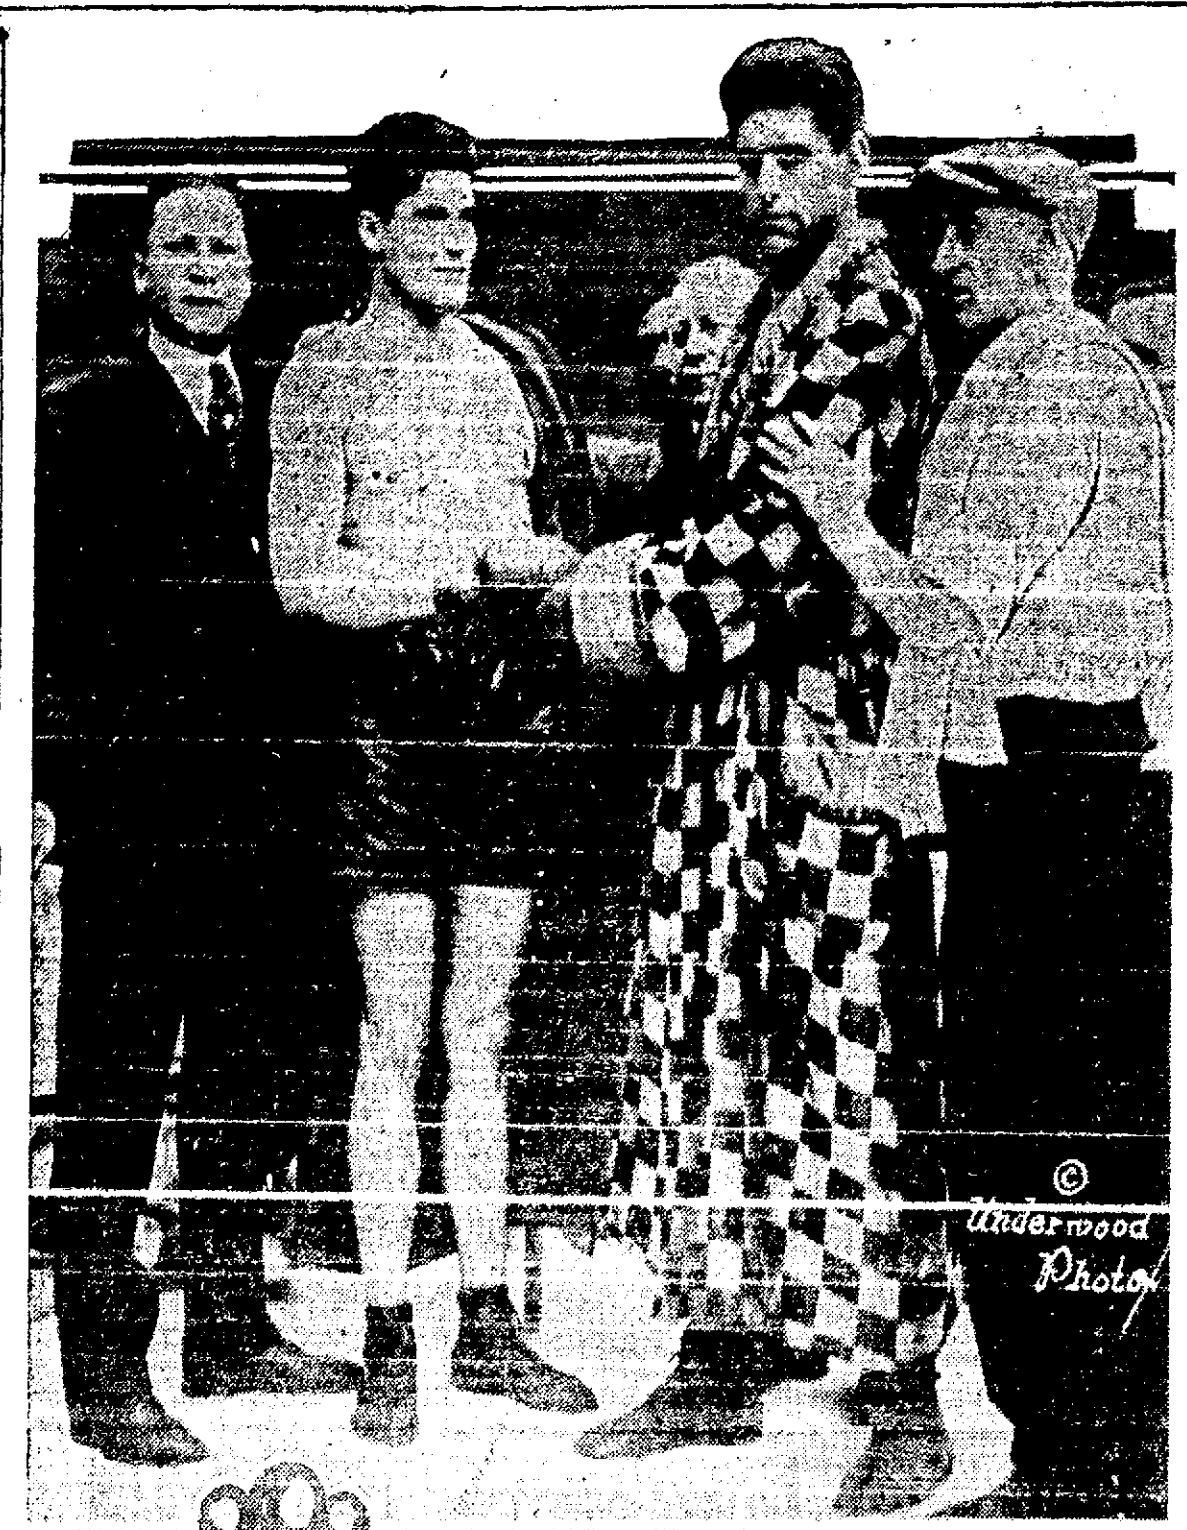

Apparently it has, to a very marked degree.

COLIMA COMPLETELY OUTCLASSES REEVES

ANGLERS REPORT GREAT LUCK IN VARIOUS COAST TROUT STREAMS

Further Proof That a Good Little Man Cannot Whip a Good Big Man

Had these pictures been published before the heavyweight battles in New York last Saturday the fans would not have supported Johnson and McAuliffe as they did. There is an old adage about a good little man being unable to whip a good big man, and the New York fight proved it. On the left is WILLARD towering over little FLOYD JOHNSON, while on the right the gigantic LUIS FIRPO is posing with JACK McAULIFFE. Willard knocked Johnson out and Firpo rocked McAuliffe to sleep. Willard and Firpo have been matched to box in New York early in July.

REEVES IS UNABLE TO LOCATE ELUSIVE SENOR; GARDNER SCORES K. O.

Teddy O'Hara Puts Up Aggressive Battle and Wins; Ray Pelkey and Al Sommers Box a Draw; Colima's Footwork Feature of Show.

If Jack Reeves was not such a serious soul he would have laughed his sides sore last night at his futile attempts to lay leather on Bert Colima. The pair were billed to box the main event at the Auditorium but Colima did all the boxing while Reeves did all the grunting. In the first round ring-side statisticians declared Colima hit his man with thirty-three left hands without a return and in the next two rounds he landed not only with dozens of lefts but he whipped a score of mean rights into the Reeves' pantry. The rights had plenty behind them but if Reeves can't box with Colima he can take 'em with any man in the ring today. The Colima footwork was the cleverest ever seen in this part of the country and Marvelous Marty Farrell and Elusive Jimmy Clabby had done the stuff in this section.

Colima conceded ten points to his opponent last night, but a 50-pound weight advantage would not have helped Jack, as he was unable to get within hitting distance of the slippery Senor. Colima simply weaved around the ring, shooting that left hand to the face, and when Reeves got too gay and tried to get in close to fight Bert would get a little back in the ring.

Reeves rushes but Colima is not there.

Reeves got desperate in the third round and rushed harder than ever, but Colima was not there where Reeves was rushing; in fact, Jack was running into the ropes so often that Tommy Simpson ordered the front door closed for fear that Jack might run clear into Lake Merritt. Reeves did his best work in the fourth, when Colima tired and let Jack do some infighting, but even in the clinches Colima showed his cleverness by turning half around and stopping most of the Reeves punches with his gloves. If Jimmy Duffy is a wise little four-pounder he will concede an ounce of weight to this Colima boy, and he'll have Billy Nolan handle the scales when they weigh in.

Tommy Gardner was the other sensation of the show. Tommy was boxing a big fellow named Bob Getz, and it looked like an even contest for almost a minute. Then breaking out of a clinch, Gardner let his right fly

Last Night's Fights

Jack Lester received a neat padding from an unknown colored heavyweight named Jack Wills at the Association club last night but the judges decided in favor of Spider Kelly's protest. Chick Roach knocked out Kid Chickum in the fourth round.

The mechanical announcer at the local show last night did not get over very well with the customers and Tossy Ryan was given a nice hand when he stepped to the center to announce the last two fights. The fights do not seem just the same without Ryan and his Tuxedo in the center of the ring.

Al Sommers pulled an old trick on Ray Pelkey when he reached over with his right arm and grabbed Pelkey's wrist.

Wonder what Tommy Gardner would do to Floyd Johnson?

BUTTE, Mont., May 17.—Joe Egan of Boston, 165 pounds, won a 13-round decision in his bout with Tommy Comiskey of Denver, 164. The match was the main event of the Manhattan Athletic Club card.

Al Sommers Gets A Draw With Pelkey.

Al Sommers did a little better against Ray Pelkey when he earned a draw. Pelkey scored a knockout in the first round, but lost his nose and didn't follow up the advantage when he had his man on Quaker street. Sommers came back strong in the last two rounds to tie the score. Al will do well in the future to cut out the arm-lock stuff. It isn't popular this season.

Teddy O'Hara put up one of the most aggressive fights of his career and defeated Louie Garcia in a bout replete with thrills. Teddy can fight when he takes the notion, and he is again in solid with the customers.

Cap Nelson and Sallor Mackadon boxed a draw. Tim Sullivan took the decision from Young Papi, the latter substituting for Frankie Oldrich. Ted Frenchie won the curtain-raiser from Jimmy Rizzo.

Weismuller to Swim In Outdoor Tanks

CHICAGO, May 17.—John Weismuller, 18-year-old marvel of the swimming world, will go into outdoor competition this season. He will swim every world's mark in the free style swimming from 40 yards to 500 yards and the back strokes records in the four recognized distances, 75, 100 and 150 yards and 100 meters. Every time he breaks a record it will be one of his own, and John has a hand of bettering his own performance.

Old Resort to Be Dempsey's Training Camp

Heavyweight Champ Given Big Welcome by Great Falls Folks.

GREAT FALLS, Mont., May 17.—Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion yesterday leased Great Falls Park, a former resort two miles south of this city, for a training camp, at which he will condition himself for his match with Tom Gibbons at Shelby, July 4. The house at the park has 15 rooms and is modern throughout while there is ample opportunity for the erection of a ring and space for spectators.

Dempsey took a long walk as his only training stunt this morning and spent the rest of the day meeting folks about the city. He posed with a champion Hereford at the livestock pavilion while his picture was taken and it was announced that he probably will be a bidder for pure bred stock Thursday at the auction of the Montana Breeders' Association. The champion said that he wants to buy a high grade animal for a rancher friend in Utah.

The champion's unattractiveness and disposition to meet folks half way have made him a host of friends since his arrival Wednesday when he was met at the railroad station by several thousand persons and made the honor guest in a parade through the business district. Jack Kearns, his manager, is expected here not later than Friday.

What Coaster Did In Major Leagues

"Lefty" Dumovich, former Los Angeles pitcher, failed to do his stuff yesterday and the Brooklyn Robins knocked him out the mound in the first inning. Dumovich was wild, issued a free pass, hit another and made a wild pitch in the bargain, and coupled with two hits the Dodgers tallied four times.

Holocher and Miller grabbed off one hit apiece, while Stutz went bitless against the pitching of Dickman, young Brooklyn chucker. Ray French made one single in the same way, and "Frenchie" Fournier crashed out a double and two singles.

Jimmy O'Connell garnered his usual base hit, while George Kelly pounced out two when the Giants defeated Pittsburgh, 6 to 2. "Princess" Kunz, formerly of Sacramento, twirled the last two frames for the Pirates and was nipped for a couple of tallies.

Philadelphia and Cleveland opposed each other at the latter's grounds, but the familiar faces of Louie Guisto and Sammy Hale were missing from the line-up. Brower replaced the former Oak at first base, while Eddie was replaced by a youngster named Riconda.

Bobby Mousel punched out his usual base knock yesterday, while the Yanks ousted a one-inning rally of starters at from sixteen to twenty-two.

Walker, Tunney Win Bouts in Chicago Show

CHICAGO, May 17.—Mickey Walker, of Elizabeth, N. J., the world's welterweight champion, won by himself in a 10-round bout here last night, but in Cowboy Palace, of Denver, Colo., encountered a ring veteran who was able to assimilate all the punishment dealt out and here in for more.

Gene Tunney of New York, American light-heavyweight champion, broke his right hand in the second round of a ten-round bout with Jimmy Delaney of St. Paul, but fighting entirely with his left hand scored so heavily in the late rounds newspaper men gave him a shade victory.

Siki, Moore Bout Will Be Postponed

MARSHFIELD, May 17.—"Battling Siki, the Senegalese pugilist, has been bitten in the arm by a lion and therefore the bout between him and the British middleweight, Moore, which was to have been held May 27 in Marshfield, has been postponed. The promoters said the wound had become infected.

Fishing Is Good In Most Local Creeks

One Angler Is Caught With Bag Consisting of Four Limits

A message has been going the rounds that the present fishing season is very productive. With one exception all the trout streams in the immediate radius of Oakland and other bay cities are producing. The game commission stated that the water in the Napa Creek is too low and at present no fishing is being done there.

Good results have been obtained in San Mateo, Santa Cruz, and Monterey county streams. San Benito has also proven to be a good spot, while the Big Sur near Monterey is the home of the fin family.

The Sonoma county streams are giving forth plenty of trout, both large and small. Tributaries of the Russian River, especially near Cazadero and Duncan Mills, are producing limits. Many anglers have been spending their weekends around Austin creek near Cazadero, and the spot seems to be always well populated.

From Carmel south the fish and game commission reports unusually good returns. The streams are well loaded, but throughout the entire territory the fish seem to be somewhat smaller than usual.

To date San Lorenzo has been crowded with both fish and fishermen. According to reports elbow room went at a premium last Sunday and early in the day numerous anglers had the stream so muddy that it was impossible to cast in many places.

Ideal weather conditions for black bass fishing prevail at Clear Lake Park in Lake County, according to many local fishers, who cast their bait in that section during the past week.

An idea of how the fish are running in San Gregorio, near El Honda, may be obtained from the fact that a game law violator was arrested there last week with 100 fish, or four limits.

Striped bass are running big in the Sacramento river at Woodland this week in the vicinity of Knights Landing and Grays Bend, a point five miles from the Landing on the Sacramento river. Orrin and Stanford Elliot and Lawrence Dieudonne, Woodland nimrods, exhibited last night a 22-pound striped bass captured by them opposite Knights Landing yesterday morning. The bass have been running big for the past three days.

Benjamin, Meehan to Leave For Camp

LOS ANGELES, May 17.—J. E. Benjamin, San Francisco lightweight, who will be a second for Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion, when he meets Tom Gibbons, challenger, of St. Paul, at Shelby, Mont., July 4, has left for his training camp at Great Falls, Mont. Benjamin will be joined at San Francisco by Willie Meehan, heavyweight, who will be one of Dempsey's sparring partners while training.

OF N. Y. Fights

"TRIBUNE SERVICE" secured another impressive victory yesterday when the home editions of this paper carried pictures of the big New York contest staged by Jack Dempsey and Tommy Gibbons to tell their admirers just how rapidly they are progressing in training for the world's heavyweight championship fight here July 4.

Details of the fight, round by round, also will be broadcast. The plan will be in operation by June 1, it was said. It will have a broadcasting radius that will reach all points in Canada and the United States.

Each day Dempsey will mount to the platform and announce whether he has bruises or whether he has "soaked" his sparring partners successfully all day. Then Gibbons will orate upon his physical condition and tell of his chances of wearing the heavyweight crown after the fight.

After each of the fighters have fortified their admirers' hopes Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager, and Eddie Kane, Gibbons' manager, will make predictions as to the outcome of the fight. The promoters then will discourse on various topics.

Mike Collins, promoter, received advices from New York today that Kearns would reach Great Falls, Mont., on Friday.

Radio to Be Used by Big Heavyweights

SHELBLY, Mont., May 17.—Plans were launched here today for the installation of a powerful radio broadcasting plant which will be used by Jack Dempsey and Tommy Gibbons to tell their admirers just how rapidly they are progressing in training for the world's heavyweight championship fight here July 4.

Details of the fight, round by round, also will be broadcast. The plan will be in operation by June 1, it was said. It will have a broadcasting radius that will reach all points in Canada and the United States.

WITH THE HIGH SCHOOL ATHLETES

Tomorrow afternoon two O. A. L. ball games will take place, when Tech high crosses bats with the Vocational nine and Oakland high clashes with University. The Tech-Voc contest will be played at Bushrod park, while the Oakland-University game will be staged at the Bay View orchard. The former game is Vocational's last chance to clinch third place.

The Vocational squad recently has been working hard with the 'ole horsehide and after dropping that game to the Acorns they woke up. At present they are one notch ahead of the Twelfth street school in the league, but if Oakland should defeat Uni tomorrow and if Voc should lose to Tech, the Market street squad will be in fourth place.

However, they have one more chance after this to grab the third position when they meet University. McCarron is expected to start on the hill for Tech and if all goes well in all probability he will be replaced by Fitzgerald, saving his arm for the final contest on Tuesday next, when they meet the Fremont Tigers.

The Oakland-University tussle is expected to be a tighter game. This is University's last chance to pull out of the cellar.

Davis or Lewin will do the honors for Oakland, while Sellman will work out for the Blue and Gold.

Fulton Trying to Get in Right Again

BOSTON, May 17.—The Massachusetts boxing commission has received word from Jimmy Johnson, manager of Fred Fulton, that the latter is ready to make amends for the breach of contract committed when the Minnesota gladiator fought Floyd Johnson in New Jersey on April 16, when they had contracted to fight in Boston.

The two boxers and their managers have been spending the last few days in the city of the Pilgrims, and it was said here that Jack Macauliffe probably will be Fulton's opponent in place of Johnson when he fulfills his contract to fight here.

Joe Burke to Meet Firpo on May 22

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., May 17.—Joe Burke, one of the Michigan crop of heavyweights, will be Luis Firpo's opponent in a ten-round match here May 23. Burke lives in Detroit.

NEW YORK FANS' LOVE FOR CASEY STENGEL HURTS JIM O'CONNELL

McGraw Wished Tough Job on Former Seal By Placing Him in Position Which Was Held By Giants' Most Popular Active Ball Tosser.

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)
NEW YORK, May 17.—Jimmy O'Connell, the $75,000 outfielder, has had heaps of trouble getting started with the New York Giants.

The prize youngster has psychology working on him and it's a tough ailment for a young ball player to overcome.

His price tag of $75,000 imposed a tremendous handicap, the commission of stepping from minor league stardom into a regular position on a world's champion club was an additional load, but the toughest assignment he was put up against was the job of keeping the fans with him when he displaced the most popular player on the Giants.

Even though he started out to hit the size of his hat and fielded hardly above the ordinary, New York fans were more than fair to young O'Connell and they treated him generously.

Hope of O'Connell Overcoming Weakness.

John McGraw knows the nature of O'Connell's ailment and he is using a sort of serum remedy and treating a psychological disease with psychology.

When the Giants learned that the new player was a regular, however, whenever Casey appeared in the field or took active part in the game, and O'Connell apparently understood the demonstration and took it for a personal reproach.

Old sentiment for Casey Stengel, the most popular player on the Giants, who was displaced as a regular, was shown, mostly, however, whenever Casey appeared in the field or took active part in the game, and O'Connell apparently understood the demonstration and took it for a personal reproach.

They Now Talk About Valla in the East.

Indications that Dunn wants bigger dough than ever for his stars were further strengthened when he visited the coast yesterday to meet with the Detroit Tigers and something about a willingness to produce about $100,000 for "Lefty" Groves, Dunn's sensational southpaw, who has been a fifty-nine strike-out pitcher in four games.

From the Pacific Coast League he is considered only as an evidence of good faith when the major league magnates visit the coast next fall and start negotiating for Gene Valla, the outfielding sensation of the San Francisco club.

Minor league magnates are wise and fortunate in the position they now hold. They have all the valuable young players and the major league magnates have all the money.

Line Drive Hurts Girl Slab Artist

SANTA ANA, Cal., May 17.—(United Press.)—Hazel Jones, star pitcher on the Santa Ana Bloomer Girls baseball team, created a near riot when a line drive struck her on the arm. She fell to the ground.

Immediately scores of sympathetic male baseball fans poured out of the stands with the altruistic thought in mind that they might be able to aid her. However, the manager of the team ran to the "dugout" and secured smelling salts, which quickly revived Miss Jones, who finished pitching the game.

SANDY HALE HURT

CLEVELAND, Ohio, May 17.—The Philadelphia Athletics, who were injured in practice yesterday, were fast today in a game against the Cleveland Indians.

Hale was carried to the club house where first aid treatment was applied.

Manager Mack sent Ricardo, another newcomer, to third base. Hale was expected to return to the game today.

KREMER CHEATED OUT OF BIG LEAGUE BERTH OAKLAND CLUB IS SHOWING NEW LEASE OF LIFE AGAINST BEAVERS

Walter Mails Hurls Oaks to An Easy Win

Locals Are Within a Half Step of Going Out of Cellar.

The Oaks climbed within a half step of getting out of the Coast League cellar yesterday afternoon, when they defeated the Portland Beavers for the second time, while the Seattle Indians were being defeated by Los Angeles in the south. The Beavers came here with every idea of having a good time at the expense of the locals, but they are going to leave here as a disappointed lot, unless they start something today or tomorrow.

Walter (Duster) Mails, the catcher, pitched a steady game, but he kept them so widely scattered that the Beavers were in a key to score a pair of runs off him. The final count was 6 to 2. Thanks to some timely hitting and smart baseball by some of them, the Oaks' men, Ted Cather was again on the job with the mallet and he collected three hits. George LaFayette, the Oaks' new infielder, was in the lineup again and he had all the pepper of a money seeker, a big percentage of the Oaks' money.

Indians and Outfielders Would Have Come in Exchange for Pitcher; Wallberg Returned to Beavers, and Klepper Sells Him to Athletics

By EDDIE MURPHY

Had not the "Big Five" of the Pacific Coast League been tripped by President William H. McCarthy, in their plans to deliver a knockout wallop to the "Little Three," Ray Kremer, star right-handed flinger of the Oakland team, would today be on a rattler headed for the east. At least five new players would now be on their way to the Oaks if the plans went through as expected, and Kremer would have been the big factor in the deal.

The Oaks had offered several major league clubs the pick of the local club, if they could just slip over some kind of talent that would help out the other departments on the team. Kremer is the man that several clubs want, but a plea to Commissioner Landis or anyone else high up in baseball cannot fix it now as that Kremer can go east and the new men come here.

Ray Kremer is anxious to get a chance in the big league, for he feels certain that he can easily make good. And there are a lot of players on different clubs in the Coast League who also think he will go big. When here last winter, Kremer was a big factor in the "Big Five" as soon as they tried to start anything last Monday. However, he was not able to do so.

BUSINESS and FINANCE

Selling of copper shares was resumed at the opening of today's session on a statement of expected earnings. Tonopah issues were slightly lower.

Ray Coppers duplicated their lows of the year. Standard Oil of New Jersey and Missouri Pacific also sold at new low prices. Most of the initial charges were fractional.

Spectacular sentiment continued unsettled because of the doubt expressed as to whether the present restriction in commodity and security prices foreshadowed a reaction in trade or was merely a readjustment of the market in preparation to another advance. The latter view was the more generally held. Additional new low records for the year were made by Pampas, Mayaguez, Phoenix Flowers and International Combination Engineering, each of about 12 points. Cuban Petroleum Sugar preferred dropped 2 1/2 points, displacing its previous record of 1914. The price of gold of California, Gulf States Steel, and American Tea each dropped a point or more and Baldwin yielded 3/4. Woolworth advanced 2 points. Tidelands Water Oil, which was weak yesterday, recovered 2 points. Foreign exchanges opened irregular. The dollar was quoted at 33 1/2, the franc at 162 1/2, the pound at 162 1/2, and French francs advanced 2 points to 36.67 cents. German marks also improved slightly, being quoted at 162 1/2 cents. A pause in the liquidating movement of miscellaneous shares gave representative stocks a chance to reflect a better speculative sentiment. A number of companies had quarterly dividends increased in the quarterly dividends on U. S. Realty, Texas Gulf Sulphur and Quaker Oats. Included a more general uptick followed after slumping to 100, snapped back to 105. Underwood Typewriter declined 5 points to a new high figure of 105. insists as the commission plans to leave the Pennsylvania and New York Central systems intact in its consolidation rearrangements, both railroad presidents expressed satisfaction. "I should be content to deal with the New York Central and Erie as the 22 largest railroad companies of the country earned over one cent of all the revenues of the system during 1932 and increased directly," he added. "The consolidation contracts are very large in proportion of the railroad mileage covered. Under permissive legislation and after a long term of years these companies might by normal growth absorb a large portion of the New York Central mileage. The financing would be less if the government ordered specific consolidations accomplished immediately. The Pennsylvania system itself, he added, has been taken up from six hundred transportation companies and is being operated as a unit."

THE CAREFULLY PLANNED
QUESTIONS ALLEN DRAKE
ASKED MADGE

As if a sudden disturbing thought had struck them, both Lillian and Allen Drake turned to me and drew me aside a little way.

"What about that trap-door?" Mr. Drake asked with a note of apprehensive disapproval in his low tones. "That will never do. There is a way out from underneath. Isn't there, Mrs. Graham?"

Lillian's hand was pressing my arm in a code signal which meant, "Don't speak. Just nod your head."

I gave the silent affirmative with a sudden terrifying, heart-shaking remembrance of my having had constructed the place beneath the old corner transformed by Dicky into a studio. Under the floor of that building my baby boy had been held a prisoner while I frantically searched woodland and meadow for him. When he finally had been restored to me, with an ill-gotten, unreasoning, truly feminine obsession. I had felt that I could not endure the knowledge of there being no way out from beneath the house. Dicky had humored me in the absurd notion, and a primitive evil from beneath the old structure had been devised by my husband.

"Perfectly safe," Lillian said reassuringly. "He'll be too well tied up. Don't worry."

A rehearsed conversation.

That Smith was straining his ears to hear their low, almost whispering tones. I was as sure as I was that there were certain words of the colloquy which had been intended for his hearing. "Trap-door," "way out," "underneath" and "too well tied up" certainly had been uttered in just enough louder accents than the rest of the conversation, to enable a keen-eared listener to catch them. I acquiesced either Lillian or Allen Drake of carelessness, and therefore knew that the man Smith purposely had been intended for the intrusion that he could find himself from the ropes tied him, he might find a way to escape.

Allen Drake spoke next, in casual accents.

"Everything's all right then. I'll just step over with the boys and attend to tying him up. You needn't trust their brand of roping. Mrs. Graham, do you suppose you could rustle a couple of sandwiches and a glass of milk, or a cup of cold coffee, if Katie has left any. This gifted gentleman? There's no use starting even the devil. It isn't exactly chicken."

I caught his meaning, of course. He wished me to give Smith the fortification of food and drink for the escape which he and Lillian planned that the man should make. With an apparent unhesitating reluctance I was afraid Smith might suspect any eager acquiescence on my part, I started toward the door.

"I must go!"

"Katie is too good a housekeeper to leave coffee in the pot over night, and I happen to know there is no milk. But, if you have to have it, I can make a pot of fresh coffee in a very few minutes, and there is cream."

"If you will be so kind," Mr. Drake returned stiffly, as if he were offended at my reluctance.

"I'll go with you, Madge," Lillian said. "Perhaps I can rustle an extra cup for myself. Do you want the grub brought outdoors?"

"No, I'll send one of the men in for it," Mr. Drake replied. "Would you mind asking them to come in as you go past the veranda?"

"I'll send them right in," Lillian promised, and returned to the kitchen door.

She did not speak again until the kitchen door had closed upon us and then she punctuated her words with a little impromptu dance step. I surmised that identification of Smith was a distinctly personal triumph and that she was giving way to her own enthusiastic gratification in a manner rare to her.

DEVIL DUST

Colonel Curtis Dall, millionaire cotton importer, and his fat son, master dope smuggler, are disturbed in their plans by the sale of Eleanor New Collins, who has been kidnapped. Both plan to silence her. Dall, standing Eleanor, leaves that she is the "Black Angel," an anonymous columnist.

Eleanor awakens standing on the body of a dead man. She is suspected of murder. The police arrive and, through Dall's aid, take Eleanor on the yacht Tribune. She suffers for want of Dr. Monroe's magic pills. The police approach.

She tries successfully from the police, suffering for want of Dr. Monroe's magic pills. Curt Dall provides her with the medicine.

Eleanor awakens to find that the Tribune is under way. Dall is taking her on a cruise. She is puzzled on discovering the fat man on board.

Dall blames her. She repulses him, but is obliged to call him to her to alleviate her suffering with Dr. Monroe's magic pills.

Dall forces Eleanor to call him to her in the night through depriving her of the medicine.

Ted, trying to raise money for his honeymoon, tells the story of Eleanor's travels to her.

He finds that Eleanor, Patton's body and the girl's trunk all have been taken away. He figures out that Dall is evil and he goes to catch a contraband.

Dr. Monroe puts Ted to touch with Eleanor's person that desires use of air and not.

Ted flies to Mexico with a strawberry blonde.

Ted lands in Mexico to take on cargo and meets Stutterer Sam, who he knew in Stutterer's Sam introduces Ted to Pete.

Pursuer and Pursued.

"Do not be enigmatic, Curtis," she queried. "What am I to do tonight?"

"You are to play hostess to Emmerson and Wetherwaite and you must look as beautiful as you did back there in California," he replied.

"But this has nothing to do with the partnership," suggested the girl.

"It has nothing to do with the partnership," said Dall, slowly. "He has information that I want. The attaches of the consulate, Emmerson, says he is taciturn and uncommunicative, especially if he thinks you are punning him. But he has a weakness. We must play on them."

"And these weaknesses are—"

"Wine and women."

"You don't mean, Curt, that you want me to coquette with this Emmerson?"

"Certainly not, my dear. But I want you to look beautiful, to talk interestingly, to be your own vivacious, youthful self and to show a tremendous interest in Chinamen of the interior. I will not intrude if you walk on deck in the moonlight. His words will be overheard as he talks to you."

"I'm to spy for you? Is that it?"

"Now Eleanor—"

"You want me to play the coquette?" she cried, working herself into a fury.

"No, no, no," Dall denied. "I'm to pry into this man's affairs."

"I must go!"

"Katie is too good a housekeeper to leave coffee in the pot over night, and I happen to know there is no milk. But, if you have to have it, I can make a pot of fresh coffee in a very few minutes, and there is cream."

fairs like a sneak, an eavesdropper, using roused beauty to lure him on," continued the girl, affecting hysteria.

"Eleanor, Eleanor, for the love of Mike," boomed Dall. "Wait a minute. Don't get excited."

He closed the door, came over arm around her shoulders. He patted her placidly. She grated her teeth and bore it.

"Would you do this for humanity's sake?" he demanded. "It is a magnificent task that you shall undertake. I am putting a hundred thousand dollars into this. The task to the human race will be many times that. Won't you play the game in a cause so holy?"

Almost he convinced her of his sincerity. He was very plausible and magnetic. This splendid specimen of mankind.

"One hint dropped to my enemies, and my whole plan would be ruined," continued the millionaire. "I'm trusting in your discretion."

"Of course in such a cause as you describe I could not refuse," said the girl, tentatively. "What are you doing?"

"I'm going to corner opium," declared Dall. "And then I'll wipe out the obnoxious traffic in contraband goods. Governments can't do it. Laws haven't stopped it. Customs guards don't do any good. But I can accomplish it in a year. I'll get a monopoly. I'll buy all the opium in the world if necessary. There'll be no more then for the hoppers."

She was leaning across the table now, her eyes bright with eager

"The hoppers," she breathed. "They will have to quit. You mean war on the narcotic traffic?" It was hitting close home now. She knew the ravages of dope.

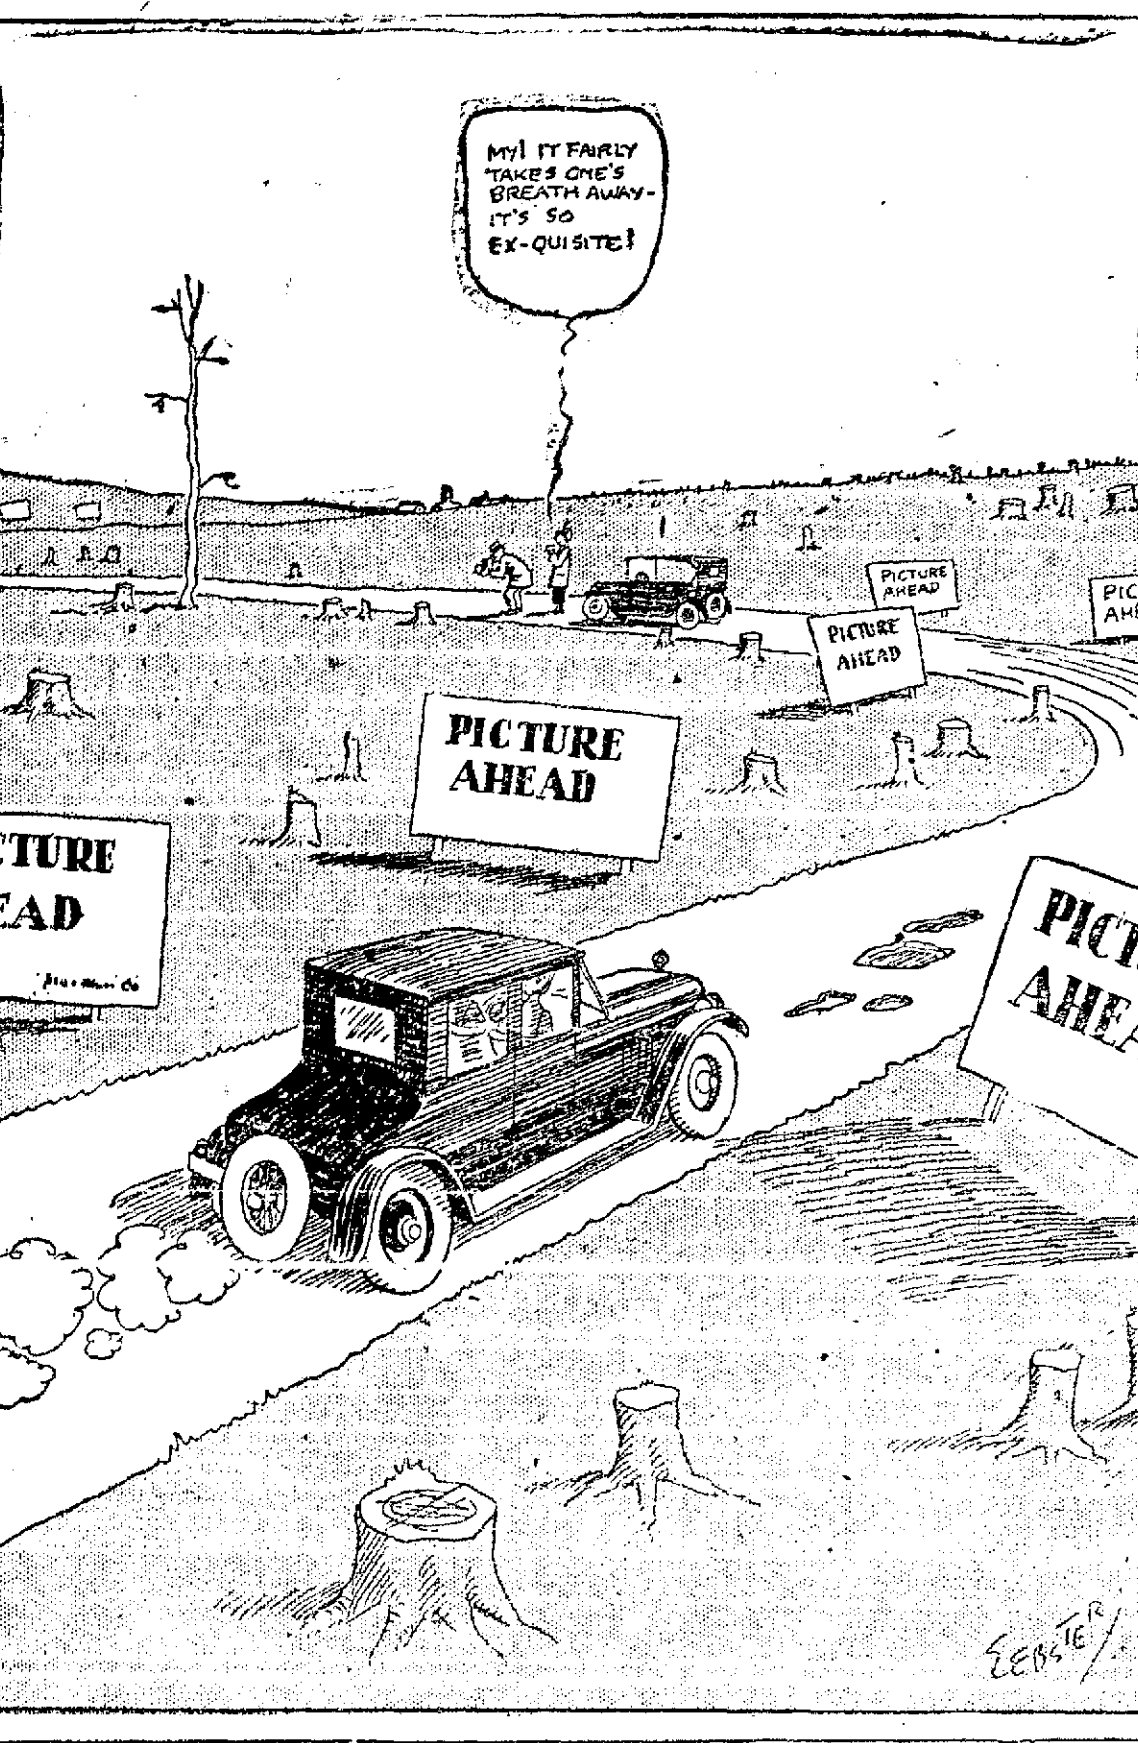

"Sure,"

"But can you make any money?"

The Theft of Annie
TODAY'S SHORT STORY
BY Ad Schuster

ANNE was older than the other waitresses and, in a quieter way, better looking. She was efficient, hard-working and business-like, the only one who gave the manager no trouble.

Tom Lyons, old-time customer, looked at the gruff manager and at the girl who waited to take his order.

"Wonder to me," he said, "why you stay in this place. You could be a head waitress, cashier, or manager. You, you are not like the other girls."

Annie gave him a puzzling smile. "Maybe it is because I am thirty. I do not quit one job before I have another. Will you have your eggs fried or poached?"

The Gruff Man would have chosen had it not been for his poverty and Annie. Tom was earning enough to make a living and that was all. At the restaurant he spent as much time as he could over his meals, and rejoiced in the chance to talk to this girl who could not guess she was his only feminine friend.

"It is discouraging," he told himself one evening when he fingered the dollar which must last him until the pay checks were handed out next day. "Here am I the only nephew of Timothy

THE MEAT IN POTATO CAKES
2 cups cold mashed potatoes.
1 beaten egg.
1 can Deviled Chili Meat.
1 teaspoon finely minced onion.
1/4 teaspoon salt.

Use the well-seasoned left-over mashed potatoes. Thoroughly mix the potatoes, egg, salt and Deviled Chili Meat (adding the onion as a matter of taste). Take spoonfuls, roll in ball shape, then pat flat, making about 1/2 inch thick. Make these cakes of even thickness, with edges with the center. The cooking is more attractive. Sprinkle each side with flour. Cook slowly in hot fat, turning to brown evenly. Deviled Chili Meat has dozens of uses when it comes to using left-over foods. The mildly hot delicious flavor "brings out" the weakened flavor of warmed-over foods.

CENTAVA SANDWICHES.
4 hard cooked eggs.
1 cup chopped parsley.
Mayonnaise.
1 can Deviled Chili Meat.
3 drops Gehlhardt's Eagle Brand Tonic Sauce.

Separate whites and yolks. Chop whites. Extra yolks through sieve or potato ricer. Mix all ingredients with Deviled Chili Meat. Spread on wafers or between slices of bread. Excellent and inexpensive.

TOYAH SALAD.
Two cans of deviled chili meat, four cups of chopped celery, one small green pepper, three small pickles (sliced), cut celery, pickle and pepper into cubes; mix all gruesome. Serve on lettuce and out top off of one dozen small sized tomatoes, remove pulp, fill with above mixture, arrange on a crisp lettuce leaf and garnish with parsley or radishes.

DEVILED CHILI MEAT.
One can of Eagle Brand Chili Meat, four tablespoons of hot water and a piece of butter the size of an English walnut. When the meat is hot break in three or four eggs and constantly stir until the eggs are stiffened. Serve with pepper and salt. For six or eight eggs use two cans of Eagle Deviled Chili Meat.

CHAPTER 2
Ee-nok-din

The wide extent of country that has since become Humboldt county, was unknown, an unexplored region, with the impetuous ardor of gold seekers an overwhelming rush of prospectors diffused itself through the mountains of the northwest. Humboldt Bay itself was discovered from the interior by the same adventurous men for commerce, its broad productive valleys invited settlers; it was a land of plenty. Elk were seen in droves, deer were abundant and unafraid, wild game, fish and fowl assured support and soon farming implements and seed wheat were brought. Rich harvests followed and enterprising men from the distant East, built a mill that saved the medium of lumber required, and ground the wheat to feed the miners. Thus the frontier was developed and small towns grew up on the bay shore, with an air of permanency.

Hoopa Valley, lying deep down between encircling mountains, became a point of importance from its location on the trail, which was for years the only way to pass from the mining regions of Klamath, Siskiyou, Trinity, or Shasta to tide water, where their supplies must be obtained. This dubious road wound its way up and up around the over those rugged and forbidding heights, only to repeat the process in surmounting another range. From either direction, a packtrain was sure to arrive at Hoopa, worn out with the precipitous descent, rest there if it must, and patiently await the stage that crossed its path.

Delays there, had made "Beckwith's place" a public convenience, for he had accommodation for man and beast. Mr. Beckwith was a leader in the small community that had in a few years been attracted to the spot by the chances of profit to be derived from the pack trains that must pass there. His wife, a woman of gentle blood and sweet spirit, was a restraining influence in the rough life of such an outpost. With Indian help she had kept a wholesome table for wayfarers, and her three little ones, all born there, had given a glimpse of home to many a wayward and weary man, while the Beckwith barn lodged men on the same hay that fed their tired animals.

The novelty of seeing occasional pack-trains, and the methods of white people, drew many curious youths to the spot where so much was to be seen and heard. One pair of willing hands was likely to be utilized at odd jobs about the house or stable.

When Ee-nok-din came with others, Mr. Beckwith recognized the red man, and after that year there, used to be seen caring so tenderly for a little crippled sister, that he called out to his wife, "Oh, mother, come out, her is just what you want, here's a boy that can take care of your babies." The boy's quick ear had already taken the sense of the words, and when Mrs. Beckwith appeared with a question him, he was ready for her service. He understood the import of her words, and shyly replied "Dee-ah, Dee-ah" (Yes, Yes), to all she said. He was promising to mind the baby, and the baby was under her part to bind the bargain. His kindly eyes spoke to her; her's danced in glee at his nod, and the tiny white hands reached out to him in confiding appeal. She was a vision of angelic loveliness to him, and his inmost consciousness responded with the unspoken purpose to be worthy of the mother's trust. Two little girls came out to see who had the baby, and when the mother had told them about the new friend, all gathered just outside the log house, that looked like a near relative of the great overshadowing tree beneath which they were fast making acquaintance, when the tinkling bell of an approaching stage, brought a warning of a meal to be prepared, and Ee-nok-din was left with his charge.

A Growing Suspicion
For years Mrs. Grauman, wife of the wealthy retired shirt-waist manufacturer, had been ailing. Or, anyhow, she thought she was ailing. She tried one specialist after another, patronized a succession of sanitariums, took the cure here, there and elsewhere. Yet nothing seemed to help her. She remained a chronic complainer.

The husband's patience sorely was tested. Also there was a constant drain upon his check-book. Mr. Grauman didn't so much mind the latter. Always he had been a generous provider for his family. What secretly irked him was a conviction that the lady's trouble was more or less imaginary; an unspoken but none-the-less sincere belief that his money was being spent to gratify a neurotic's whim. Had Mr. Grauman known the words "malingering" and "hypocondriac" these undoubtedly were the words he would have applied in his own private diagnosis of the case.

Nevertheless, the invalid, after long months of treatment, succumbed to her mysterious malady. She became no more.

On the night before the funeral the mourning widower sat alone by the bier. For long hours he communed with himself. Finally he reached forth a caressing hand and softly patted the casket.

"Well," he said, "maybe Mommer was sick."

DO YOU LIKE PARTIES?

I AM about to ask a Dread Question. Probably you won't answer it. There are secrets which even the bravest would dread to reveal. Maybe this is one of them. But in case you're one of those Fearless Seekers for the Truth, who doesn't spare even his own psychoanalysis, anatomy, will you give me the low down on the following:

DO YOU LIKE PARTIES?

By parties I mean those affairs where you wear your tightest shoes and stiffest collar, and sit around all evening playing Little Games with a lot of people who bore you to tears. Then you "draw up" around some little tables with lace on them and eat salad, almonds, lettuce, and chocolate cake and chocolate out of cups that feel like a baby's head. Then someone tells a Funny Riddle, and everyone titters. And someone else tells another funny riddle and someone else tells another funny riddle.

other funny riddle—Oh gosh, DO you like parties? I do not like parties. I do not like parties. I am expressing the matter thus temperately because my editor has just informed me that if I use profanity again in this department I will be given the atmosphere. However, this is a free land and no editor is going to prevent me from asserting with a mean snarl that I do not like parties. I do not like parties. I do not like parties. And I am going to get out of them by a spontaneous display of congenial insanity, rables, mumps, Bolshevism or other social impediment.

Now don't make a mistake and conclude that I'm not a social animal. I am. I'm positively gregarious if allowed to greg in my own way. But my gregariousness doesn't include any Little Games, Lace Dollies, Company China, or Riddles. My idea of a Real Time is to sit around in my natural clothes and have folks drop in. Having dropped and arranged ourselves without any regard for the rules of interior decoration, we proceed to talk, grin, gossip, lie or fight as the mood dictates. Anyone who suggests Reading Pieces, Singing Solos, or Playing Charades is taken out to the garage and killed where it won't stop things.

After that is disposed of we are able to talk, grin, gossip, lie or fight as the mood dictates. Anyone who suggests Reading Pieces, Singing Solos, or Playing Charades is taken out to the garage and killed where it won't stop things.

California Wrote.

THE REV. COLTON, U. S. N., writing this day, 1849, a year after the discovery of gold at Sutter's Mill, gives a strange story of the "unrelenting opposition of California to the United States. Recalling that ranchers had been robbed of their stock to meet the exigencies of the Mexican War, he laments the fact that the field to maintain conquest, and every article of food and clothing was sold at a price which the gold could not be redeemed, so it went into the clutches of the government, through a "bold swindle under the guise of law."

tion in our national legislature, and without any civil benefits to return. Not even light-horse has arisen to relieve the onerous injustice. Millions thus extorted the locked up in the sub-treasury. In this absorption of the circulation medium, commercial loans can only be effected at ruinous rates, and the civil government is bankrupt. Every dollar of these ill-gotten gains should be placed forthwith at the disposal of the state of California. It belongs to her, it was never the property of the United States under any law of congress. It has been exacted under the executive circulars under the united dictates of arbitrary power. Nor do these aggressions and wrongs stop here.

Not a lighthouse! Little did the Rev. Colton foresee the day when the U. S. navy, to which he had the honor to be attached, would maintain a fleet on the Pacific coast of the Atlantic, and that the Pacific would become the highway of commerce.

California has been down and wrongs.

The Adventures of Raggedy Ann and Raggedy Andy

WHEN the Snoopywig and the Wiggynoop and Grinny Bear pushed old Mister Hokus, the magician this way and that way until they pushed him into the back of the wagon back to where they had left Raggedy Ann and Raggedy Andy.

HE IS NOT THE KIND OF CHARACTER TO RIDE A BICYCLE.

"Here he comes!" Hop on a bicycle and ride away. And the Raggedy Ann and Raggedy Andy went on the path in the dark, deep woods, followed by Grinny Bear and the Wiggynoop.

Maybe you have never seen a Snoopywig. It is a kind of a picture of a man. It is a Snoopywig, so you can plainly see that he is not the kind of creature to ride a bicycle. Maybe he could ride an old fashioned "bamboo" bicycle for a hundred years, but he couldn't ride a modern bicycle. And the Snoopywig having four legs, really needed a bicycle.

If Raggedy Ann had only thought of this, then they would have had such a splendid adventure.

When the Snoopywig jumped upon the bicycle, only two of his legs had a place to ride and the other two just stood upon the ground and kept the bicycle from going any farther.

The Snoopywig, riding the bicycle, pulled him from the bicycle and tied a string around his neck. It was a magic string and the Snoopywig couldn't pull away from him. He tried to, but he couldn't. Then old Mister Hokus, the magician, jumped upon the Snoopywig's bicycle and rode home and the Snoopywig rode along behind him, for the magician held on to the other end of the string. When old Mister Hokus reached home, he took the Snoopywig into his kitchen and tied him to the table.

Then he tied an apron around the Snoopywig's front and said, "Now, you can't get away from me. You are a hired girl, so you can cook the meals and sweep the kitchen and brush the crumbs away from the floor. And if you try to escape, then the magic string will pull you right back into the kitchen."

"I don't believe that at all!" the Snoopywig said as he ran out the kitchen door. Heeky split. The Snoopywig ran out the kitchen door and almost across the porch, then the magic string pulled him back into the kitchen so hard he almost split the stove.

"See?" old Mister Hokus laughed. "Now you've got to stay right here in the kitchen!"

Songs and Singers

The crop—
Of songs and singers—
That seem to bud on every vine—
Defy the frosts of changing years—
And form a lifting line—
That reaches back into all ages—
For every clan has had its songs—
Each trade-mark tells where it belongs—
And they are ever changing—
So we have songs for every mood—
The lover pines beneath the moon—
And thinks his heart is broken—
And breaks into some doleful tune—
With words too soulful to be spoken—
And so he sings them—
But though his voice is not the best—
He gets a great load off his chest—
With just some sentimental tune—
That tells of young love 'neath the moon—
The mother sings her babe to sleep—
As night-time with its shadows creep—
With songs undying—
And when the years have turned us gray—
We hum the songs of that sweet day—
With tears and sighing—
We used to sing of maidens fair—
With big, round eyes and curly hair—
Who sleeps by some deep river—
And so song used to make a hit—
Or cause a sentimental fit—
In fact, it was a flivver—
Unless the girl had died while very young—
But soon old rag-time hit the town—
And made each man a jumping clown—
Who did a wiggle—
For we had tired of fair-haired maids—
Who slept beneath the everglades—
We longed to giggle—
And ever since that wicked day—
That syncopation came our way—
The sober-minded—
Said that our finish they could tell—
For we were on our road to—well—
At least we were to music blinded—
I used to tink a mandolin—
And join with other voices singing—
And even now an echo comes—
I hear bum voices loudly ringing—
And mine the worst of all the rest—
Put somehow young hearts get a kick—
When it but makes the old folks sick—
Not long ago I used to hear—
Bum quartettes howling in the gloaming—
And I would know they'd had too much—
Of five per cent with white cap foaming—
But some man changed the world around—
We now spit cotton on the ground—
And lost our inspiration—
The men who took away our quaff—
Were not joy bringers—
For goodness me they've robbed the world—
Of all its singers.

Uncle Wiggily Longears, the bunny rabbit gentleman, was hopping through the woods one day, looking for an adventure, when, all of a sudden, he heard a voice say: "I think something is going to happen."

"That's what I think," spoke another voice. "And I think I'm going to be bad!"

"Isn't that funny—I feel the same way!" exclaimed the voice which had first spoken.

"Gracious goodness, me makes alive and some peanut pudding!" thought Mr. Longears. "Can this be the Fuzzy Fox or the Woosie Wolf who are going to be so bad as to nibble my ears, I wonder?"

The bunny gentleman was about to hop away as fast as he could hop when there was a rustling sound in the bushes and out popped, not the bad Fox or Wolf, but two little animal boys—Bully No Tail, the frog, and Jackie Bow Wow, the puppy.

"Oh, hello, boys!" cried Uncle Wiggily in his most jolly voice, for he was no longer afraid.

"Hello, Uncle Wiggily," croaked Bully, while Jackie barked his good light, and then the frog boy said: "You must excuse us, Uncle Wiggily, but we have to hurry to school so we won't be late!"

"That's right, don't be late," agreed Mr. Longears, as he watched Bully hop and Jackie run along the woodland path. "And, as I have nothing special to do," whispered Uncle Wiggily to himself, "I'll hop to the Hollow Stump School and see what Jack and Bully meant about saying that they were going to be bad and have something happen."

No sooner said than done. Uncle Wiggily hopped along under the trees to the place where the Lady Mouse teacher held lessons in the Hollow Stump School.

Now it happened just as Bully and Jackie had said it might. The little animal boys felt very jolly and happy like that day, and when the Lady Mouse went into the next room to get some new pieces of chalk, all at once Bully, the frog, left his seat and stood on his head in the middle of the room. Jackie, the puppy, followed him and stood on his head in the middle of the room. The other pupils looked at each other.

Then Jackie Bow Wow took his long, thin, bean blower from his desk and he began blowing hard beans, like bullets, all around the room. This made the other children laugh and Bully was laughing still, and Jackie was standing on his head and Jackie was shooting beans when, all of a sudden, the Lady Mouse teacher croaked back into the room.

"Oh, how quiet it was when I was here!" she said. "But now look! The Lady Mouse had seen what happened."

"Bully No Tail," she squeaked in a gentle voice, "since you are so fond of standing on your head you may do it as often as you like. Stand on your head in the corner, Bully, if you please." And Bully, growing very red behind his ears, shuffled over and stood on his head in the corner.

"And Jackie Bow Wow," went on the Lady Mouse teacher, "since you are so fond of blowing beans about the room, you may stand on your hind legs in the other corner and blow your bean blower. Jackie, march to his corner, his tail between his legs. And all the children hardly laughed at all when they saw Bully standing on his head and Jackie on his hind legs, each in opposite corners of the school room.

Then the door opened and in came Uncle Wiggily.

"Ah, ha!" exclaimed the bunny gentleman. "I feared this was going to happen."

"Just a little bad," said the teacher sadly.

And then, all of a sudden, Bully the Frog and Jackie the Puppy stood up right on their legs properly.

"Oh, teacher!" he croaked, "as I stood on my head I could look out through the window up into a tree, and the Bob Cat is hiding there, ready to jump down on me. Uncle Wiggily, when he hops out. Oh, Lady Mouse teacher, what shall we do?"

"Quick, Jackie," squeaked the Lady Mouse. "You take your bean blower and pepper the Bob Cat as long as you have the beans and the blower make some good use of them, and thank you, Bully, for letting us know about the Bob Cat in the tree."

Then Jackie, taking careful aim, sent a shower of hard beans, like bullets, toward the Bob Cat waiting to nibble the bunny's ears.

"Ouchie! Wouchie!" howled the bad cat. "Oh, my nose! And down out of the tree he fell her-flop!" So he didn't nibble the rabbit's ears after all, and the Lady Mouse teacher left Jackie and Bully come from their corners and forgave them. I wish I could say they were ever bad again, but I can't, for they were. But if the umbrella doesn't turn inside out when it sees the cat, what's the use of an umbrella?

NEW SHOES FOR NEW BABIES.

Laced shoes are very much better for the baby who is learning to walk than button shoes. The laced shoes support the feet and the baby's feet are very much better.

Better fabrics of this class and character --- have never been woven!
Finer tailoring and hand-workmanship --- have never been designed!
Smarter styles and models (direct from 5th Avenue) --- have never been created!

The man who buys Foreman & Clark clothes buys the best appearance in the world. And—the man who buys Foreman and Clark clothes buys the choicest woollens in America. And—the man who buys Foreman and Clark clothes buys the finest hand-workmanship, the newest style, the smartest tailoring, the strongest inner construction—put into any clothes, anywhere, at any price!

This would hold good if Foreman and Clark clothes came through middlemen and jobbers and sold, just as they are—at $50, $60 or $70.

It holds equally good with Foreman and Clark clothes coming direct from our own New York factories and selling, upstairs from coast-to-coast, at $25, $30 and $35.

Foreman and Clark have shown and proved this to half a million wearers all over America! Those half million wearers have told it and re-told it to a million future wearers from coast-to-coast.

The Foreman and Clark market widens twice as fast as our New York factory facilities because every man tells his friends, every buyer boosts these clothes, every wearer advertises our methods and our values.

Time for your NEW HAT

This time make it a Foreman and Clark hat, as you wished you had (if you didn't) last season!

Guaranteed $2.50
$3.50 value

We consider it just as important to operate the friendliest organization in the clothing industry as to build the greatest suit of clothes in America! We consider human warmth, pleasantness, courtesy, old-fashioned personal interest—just as much a part of our policy as the guarantee behind the clothes.

We do more for a man, go farther to please him, try harder to learn his personal whims and wats, and then work harder to meet them, than any clothing business that was ever founded. Perhaps we go to extremes. But they are healthy extremes.

Is it extreme to serve a man personally when he comes in? Is it extreme to know him personally when he goes out? Is it extreme to write him three weeks after his purchase to ask if everything is all right? Is it extreme to be as glad to satisfy him six months after his purchase as we were to see him when he bought? Is it extreme to press his garment, sponge it and keep it in minor repair as often as he wants without cost or obligation? Maybe it is—but

We believe those things—just as much as any other—are responsible for the 100,000 new customers we gained last year and for double that gain in 1923.
